Trade deficit,
layoffs worsen
economic dive

A worsening trade deficit, the fourth straight monthly decline in a key government economic index and new production cutbacks and layoffs Friday signaled worsening recession as the nation approached the New Year.

In Europe, gold prices hit record levels, nearing $200 an ounce just three days before Americans will be allowed legally to own gold bullion for the first time since the Great Depression of the 1930s.

The Commerce Department's composite index of eight leading economic indicators—a carefully watched barometer of the state of the economy—dropped 1.5 per cent in November, the fourth consecutive monthly decline.

As President Ford conferred in Vail, Colo., with energy advisers and cabinet members on ways to cut the nation's expensive foreign oil bill, the Commerce Department reported a November trade deficit of $113 million that was in part caused by a 3 per cent increase in oil imports.

For the first 11 months of 1974, the United States has paid $22.2 billion for petroleum products—three times the $7.8 billion for all of 1973.

U.S. exports of manufactured goods and transportation equipment dropped 6 per cent in November. Food imports soared 35 per cent to $880 million but were still far less than food shipments of $1.3 billion overseas. Coal exports were up 22 per cent.

Imports of all petroleum products were estimated at 185.3 million barrels in November, up from an average of 184.9 million barrels in the two previous months.

Gunman robs
store, customer

A gunman wearing a ski mask and armed with a long-barreled handgun escaped with about $125 from the cash register at Jesse's Market, 606 E. Francis St., Ontario, Friday at 5:30 p.m.

He was accompanied by a companion who, police said, took a wallet containing $35 from Richard Bustamante, a customer.

Witnesses, who gave police a full description of the two, said they ran from the market carrying the money in their hands.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Columnist and etiquette expert Amy Vanderbilt died late Friday in a plunge from a second story window of her East Side apartment. Police said the death was apparently suicide, although an official ruling was not immediately made.

Police said a passerby found the body of the 66-year-old author of the "New Complete Book of Etiquette," and syndicated columnist about 7:55 p.m. EST, lying on the sidewalk in front of her apartment at 438 East 87th St.

Police said her husband, Curtis Kellar, was inside the apartment when the incident occurred. He walked into the front room, noticed his wife was not inside, and saw the open window, officers said.

Police said that there was no suicide note found, but that the death was an "apparent suicide."

However, Kellar, reached later at home, said his wife had been sick for a long time with hypertension and had been taking various drugs.

He said she complained of dizzy spells and may have fallen out of the window.

Miss Vanderbilt was taken to Metropolitan Hospital where she was pronounced dead on arrival at 7:58 p.m., police said.

Her body was taken to the Manhattan Medical Examiner's office for autopsy.

A personal friend who said she spoke to Miss Vanderbilt two days before Christmas described the columnist as being "a little harried preparing for Christmas but in good spirits."

"She said she'd be seeing us right after New Year's. I can't think of any reason why she'd commit suicide."

The friend, who asked not to be identified, said Miss Vanderbilt suffered from hypertension and had spent a few weeks in a hospital in August, "but they got it under control and she went on a diet, lost weight and was feeling well."

Miss Vanderbilt was born July 22, 1908, in the Staten Island section of New York City. She studied in Switzerland and the Packer Collegiate Institute in Brooklyn, before entering New York University in 1926 as a special student in journalism.

In 1927, she went to work for her local newspaper, the Staten Island Advance, as a society columnist. From 1929 to 1933 she worked as an account executive with H.R. Mallison advertising agency, leaving in 1933 to take a job as business manager of the "American Spectator," a literary magazine.

From 1935 to 1945, Miss Vanderbilt worked in advertising and public relations for several firms.

It was in the late forties that Doubleday, Inc., approached Miss Vanderbilt to write a book about etiquette.

"I knew that it was going to be a four-year job," she said at the time, "but I also knew that I wasn't going to let the prospect of that much steady writing and research get me down."

She retired to "Daisyfields," her farm in Westport, Conn., where she began to write the "New Complete Book of Etiquette," a volume that would make her a nationally known authority on etiquette.

41 French miners killed in underground blast

LENS, France (UPI) — A pre-dawn explosion a half mile below ground that shook the earth "a giant thunderbolt" killed 41 miners in a mineshaft Friday in France's worst mine disaster in 30 years.

The last unaccounted for body was raised from the shaft Friday night. A grieving crowd of relatives and friends huddled outside the pithead in the rain and watched as rescue workers hauled up the last unaccounted for body.

Six injured survivors were taken to the hospital. One was in serious condition.

Judge Henri Pascal gave the official account of casualties, but other rescue officials said they were checking accounts of other possible deaths or injuries.

The explosion, 2,300 feet below ground, struck pit Number 3 of the Lievin state-run coalfields in the Calais department of northeastern France, 20 miles south of the Belgian border at 6:30 a.m.

"We felt the ground shake under our feet as if the earth had been struck by a giant thunderbolt," said miner Robert Constant who was working a nearby pit when the blast occurred.

The sound of a wailing siren over the rain-soaked coalfield brought men, women and children rushing to the pithead, some of them in nightgowns.

The anxious, pushing crowd seeking news from miners fleeing neighboring pits hampered the passage of ambulances and trucks carrying out the dead and the injured, one of whom was described in very serious condition.

"The morning shift just descended into the pit after a five-day Christmas holiday when the explosion came," said engineer Rene Liegeois.

The northern French mines are known to be very dangerous because of a high degree of fire-damp and gas and even during the holiday security men checked below ground on the concentration of the deadly gas, mine officials said.

President Valery Giscard d'Estaing wired the miners' families his condolences and sent industry minister Michel d'Ornano to Lievin to head the investigation.

Officials have not been able to determine so far exactly what caused the explosion.

"Sometimes the volatile highly explosive coal dust is ignited by a mere spark from a pneumatic drill hitting a flint," said a rescuer, his face smudged with coal and sweat.

The Lievin disaster was the worst since the late President Charles de Gaulle nationalized all French mines in 1945. The previous highest toll in recent years was 29 miners killed in 1958.

The worst single French coal mine tragedy, rated as one of the world's biggest, was in 1906 when 1,171 miners died at Courrières, in the same area as Lievin.

Finch to run for U.S. Senate in '76

SAN MARINO (UPI) — Robert Finch, a cabinet officer in the first Nixon administration and once one of the former president's closest advisers, announced Friday he will run for a U.S. senate seat in 1976.

Finch, 49, said he was announcing his intention to seek the Republican nomination for the seat held by Democratic Sen. John Tunney so early because of the complexity of the "gut issues" of the economy, food and fuel.

Finch, a moderate Republican and a former California lieutenant governor, said he felt "an enormous sense of betrayal" by the Watergate scandal.

But he said he did not know what affect it would have on his senate campaign.

Finch left Washington in 1972, after serving under Nixon as HEW Secretary and later as a presidential counselor.

He said outgoing Gov. Ronald Reagan and state controller Houston Flournoy, who lost the November governor's race to Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr., would remain neutral in the primary.

Finch was elected lieutenant governor during Reagan's first administration in 1966.

Government proposal

Plastic auto bumpers to save energy?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government wants us to drive cars with plastic bumpers to save energy.

The National Traffic Safety Administration of the Transportation Department proposed Friday that auto manufacturers be allowed to put plastic bumpers on new cars instead of heavy steel ones required on new models since 1973.

The public has 45 days to comment before a final ruling is made.

Not only would plastic bumpers be cheaper, the agency said, but they would be lighter and therefore save gasoline.

"We think this could save up to 100 pounds of weight on a car," a Transportation Department spokesman said.

"The weight saving would save gas and that is an important factor in the energy crunch."

The word "crunch" seemed appropriate, since part of the proposal would change the present requirement that bumpers withstand without damage a 5 m.p.h. impact with a stationary, solid object, lowering it to 4 miles per hour for plastic bumpers.

Also, during an interim development period running until Sept. 1979, the impact requirement would be reduced to 2.5 m.p.h.

Car dealer returns to barter system to up sales

HAMTRAMCK, Mich. (UPI) — Auto dealer George Nouhan has gone back to the bartering system to combat the auto industry's sales slump.

Nouhan, who has been in business in this Detroit enclave for 22 years, is accepting anything of value as down-payment on a car or truck.

Among the items he and partner Joe Sako have collected at their Chevrolet dealership since the offer began Dec. 9:

—A 27-foot 125-horsepower boat that sleeps four.

—A Wurlitzer organ.

—A pair of oil leases for land in northern Michigan.

—A washer-dryer-freezer.

—A mobile flood light unit used in night construction work.

They're also negotiating with a farmer who's willing to part with some cows and sheep as a down payment; a woman who wants to give up her equity in a duplex and a couple of men with lakefront property.

Nouhan said the offer was made "just to get the money moving again, to try to keep the business going."

"I think the times were right for the offer," he said. "A lot of people need a car and feel they can't afford it. This gives them a chance to get some cash for a down payment."

When customers offer an item, the firm appraises it "at fair market value," he said. "We don't try to make a profit on them. We only try to get out of them what we put in."

Nouhan said he sold six cars through trading the first week, an estimated 15 to 20 per cent increase over what sales would have otherwise been.

"A lot of people have an awful lot of things just sitting around the house they don't use," he said. "A woman had an organ that was worth $2,100 and it's in perfect condition, but it had just been sitting in her home for the last five years gathering dust."

The dealer said the items collected are resold almost immediately by word of mouth "to anybody who wants them," including employees, friends and relatives.

"Isn't it odd how many people in this alleged conspiracy had the urge to get the truth out?" he asked sarcastically. "How difficult it was. How well they restrained themselves..."

"Isn't it strange how all the defendants in this case take the position that this whole massive cover-up was concocted, planned, executed and carried out by the little privates in this army —Dean, LaRue, Magruder, Kalmbach, Ulasewicz —and they were not a part of it?"

"If you believe that, find the defendants not guilty."

Storm lashes northwest

By United Press International
Another Christmas week storm mounted in the West Friday, leaving Washington's Puget Sound area under an unexpected 10 inches of traffic-stifling snow.

The snows which hit the southwest Christmas day tapered off and, near Truth Or Consequences, N.M., search dogs found alive a 14-year-old boy who had spent two nights wandering over the drifted Desert Jornada Del Muerta — Journey of the Dead.

David Cordova, father of the missing Joseph, said, "The miracle of miracles has happened. You can rest assured that we'll be on our knees."

But to the northwest, gusty winds drove heavy and drifting snow along the Idaho panhandle, the northern mountains of California, and the Sierra Nevadas, including the Lake Tahoe basin and Upper Yellowstone Valley.

The new storm hit first at the state of Washington, where more than 100 cars were reported stalled or in snowdrifted ditches along the Renton-Burien Freeway near Seattle Friday.

Three persons were killed and three were injured when a twin-engine local airline plane crashed shortly after takeoff in the snow from Seattle's Boeing Field.

Tree limbs cracked and fell onto power lines under the weight of the snow, causing power outages lasting 12 hours or more in the area. The outages also led to traffic snarls on the Lake Washington Floating Bridge between Seattle and the exclusive suburb of Mercer Island.

The snows showed up without warning Thursday night. Both Olympia and Tacoma, Wash., measured 10 inches and in Tacoma the snow caved in the roof of a boathouse, damaging 60 pleasure craft.

Further north, a mounting storm system threatened the attempt of the Coast Guard cutter Balsam to bring into port a 487-foot logging vessel which was disabled in the Pacific Ocean 200 miles south-east of Adak, Alaska.

The National Weather Service said the strong Pacific storm system located over northern Idaho Friday afternoon would bring intensifying snows west of the Continental Divide.

Temperatures fell to 13 above zero at Alamosa and Eagle, Colo. But in Florida, it was 81 at Key West and 80 at Fort Meyers and Sarasota.

SEATTLE SNOWFALL — A heavy snowstorm caught the Puget Sound region unawares Thursday night, piling up eight inches of snow in some areas and snarling traffic and causing power blackouts. But the street lights were shining brightly near the Seattle Center Arena where a high school basketball tournament was underway.

Minister's aide knows blackmailers

LONDON (UPI) — The secretary of imprisoned British parliament member John Stonehouse said Friday she knows the names of the persons who the former cabinet minister claimed were threatening blackmail and forced him to flee to Australia.

Mrs. Sheila Buckley identified them only as five business associates of Stonehouse, who was arrested in Melbourne five weeks after his disappearance from a Miami, Fla., hotel.

"I know the names of the blackmailers," she said.

But she said she would not reveal any more information "until I receive instructions from my employer."

Stonehouse, 49, cabled British Prime Minister Harold Wilson shortly after his arrest that he had fled to escape "incredible pressures" of business and "threats of blackmail." He did not elaborate.

Mrs. Buckley, 28, who divorced her husband last year on grounds of his adultery, said she would consider working for Stonehouse in Australia if the former cabinet minister settled there.

But she denied rumors of a romantic involvement with Stonehouse.

Stonehouse's wife, Barbara, joined him in Melbourne Thursday.

Boy beaten by his abductor has surgery

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI) — Ten-year-old Chris Carrier, victim of a sadistic abductor, underwent a two-hour operation Friday to remove infected bone fragments from the right side of his brain.

Fred Flam, administrator of Jackson Memorial Hospital, said the boy's condition "is fair" following the surgery.

The badly-beaten boy was found by a hunter Thursday night lying along a dirt road in the Big Cypress Swamp area, near Naples on Florida's southwest coast. He disappeared from this Miami suburb Dec. 20 while on his way home from a Christmas party.

Authorities have been unable to determine any reason for his abduction.

Capt. Charles Skalaski, Coral Gables detective chief, said police were unable to get much information from the boy in their first talks with him.

"This kid went through a very, very tough ordeal," Skalaski said. "I don't know if I could stand it myself."

"He's a real hero, believe me. This person (the abductor) was a very sadistic individual."

Woman is found dead in home

Veatrice Hahl, 60, of 690 Date St. in Pomona was found dead in her home Friday morning by her daughter.

Mrs. Hahl apparently died of natural causes. Her body was discovered by Carole Vallerey of 4124 Sierra Vista St., Chino, at about 11:30 a.m. Friday.

The body was taken to Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona.

Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital Friday after first having been taken to Naples Community Hospital. Dr. Larry Page, a neurosurgeon at Jackson Memorial, said Chris was in "stable condition."

"We don't really know how bad things are," the surgeon said.

"He has had a very serious injury to his left eye," Page said. "I'm told he can't see out of it. I don't know what the final prognosis will be (on the eye), but I think it's poor."

"Apparently the boy must have been unconscious for some period of time," Page said. "He has amnesia for much of the time he was abducted."

Hugh Carrier, the boy's attorney father, appeared for about four minutes at the hospital news conference where Page spoke. He was accompanied by Coral Gables detective Sam Vizzini.

Vizzini said he was not permitted to report on the progress of the police investigation, but said the child was "not sexually molested that I know of."

Co-workers play Santa to woman whose home was looted

Sign to thieves brings a Merry Christmas, after all

Marie Ayala told the world that someone had stolen her children's Christmas presents—and her co-workers at a Pomona bank answered the plea.

A sign on her front door at 896 S. Hamilton Ave., Pomona, proclaimed, "The people who stole my children's Xmas presents, I hope you have a merry Xmas."

"It was my brother Ray's idea," said Mrs. Ayala. "We decided to let everyone know."

Mrs. Ayala, 26, had purchased about $125 worth of gifts for her two children, Marlene, 5 and Armando, 11.

care of the bad boys."

Mrs. Ayala told police the youths had taken the gifts, but they have not been returned, nor have the boys been captured.

Mrs. Ayala said her mother and cousin saw signs of the burglars. At 3 p.m. Monday, her mother, who lives next door, heard someone at Marie's door. Later, Marie called the police. After that, her cousin saw two or three teen-age youths knock on the door.

Her mother walked into the house at 5 p.m. and discovered the theft.

Her fellow employees at Security Pacific Bank on Pomona Mall, however, gave Mrs. Ayala the biggest Christmas gift she could have imagined.

They took up a collection, and Marie was able to play Santa to her youngsters, after all.

"They were so nice. They even let me go home early Tuesday, so I could get my Christmas shopping done—for the second time."

SPOTLIGHT ON CRIME

Several teen-age boys broke open her front door while no one was home Monday, however, and took the gifts, including a Barbie doll Marlene wanted. "My little girl really cried," said Marie. "She wished God would take

5 more seek MSAC board post; 13 now in running

Five more candidates have filed their papers with Leonard Panish, Los Angeles County Registrar of Voters, for the three vacancies on the board of trustees of Mt. San Antonio College in March.

The total number of candidates in the biennial school board elections March 4 now stand at 13.

Those who filed papers this week are Mrs. Loretta D. Cousar, a school teacher from West Covina; Alfred M. Diza, an IBM data processing consultant and former Cal Poly professor from Pomona; Walnut dentist Ralph Kimball; general contractor Travis Manning of Hacienda Heights and Ron Boran of West Covina, a newscaster on the college radio station KSAK.

They join incumbents William Temple of Covina and Richard Todd of Pomona, as well as Charles Hall, John O'Leary and Joseph Damasius, all of Diamond Bar; John Popovich of Pomona, Gilbert Ramirez of West Covina; and Mrs. Hazel Haas of Covina.

Of the 13 candidates, eight are also running for election in a special election Jan. 7 to fill the unexpired term of Lance D. Smith, who died last August.

Smith's term as well as those of Temple and Todd will expire March 31. The filing period for the March 4 election will close next Friday at 5 p.m.

Kidnap charge filed against woman found with missing tot

Mrs. Lucia Rubi, 30, of Guasti has been formally charged with kidnapping in connection with the alleged abduction of a 2-year-old Ontario girl on Dec. 6.

Since she was found holding Cori Speegle of 1900 S. Campus Ave. in a south Ontario church, Miss Rubi has undergone psychiatric tests at the Metropolitan Hospital in Norwalk. Earlier this week Mrs. Rubi was released from the Norwalk hospital and placed in the San Bernardino County Jail.

Dave Simpson of the Ontario Police Department said that Mrs. Rubi has been formally charged with kidnapping through the West End Deputy District Attorney's Office and will be arraigned in the Municipal court.

Cori was discovered missing on Dec. 6 by her mother. More than 200 searchers joined police in attempting to locate the child. Twenty-four hours later Cori was found in an Ontario church with Mrs. Rubi. The little girl had suffered only a minor cold and small bruises on her feet.

Simpson said the woman has said little about how the girl was allegedly abducted or what happened in the 24 hours she was missing.

Robbery suspect arrested after 85-90 m.p.h. chase

A 28-year-old robbery suspect was captured by sheriff's deputies Friday after a high-speed chase through Walnut and West Covina reached speeds of 85 to 90 miles an hour.

Michael Kirk of 20562 Vejar Road, Walnut, was booked into the City of Industry jail on suspicion of armed robbery, kidnapping and auto theft.

Deputies said the pursuit began at 8 a.m. when officers tried to stop the car for a traffic violation in Walnut. The suspect allegedly failed to stop, and engaged deputies in a high-speed chase before his car was halted at Hollenbeck and Cameron avenues in West Covina.

Deputies said he was wanted on two prior robberies, one of a liquor store in Rowland Heights, the other a purse-snatching in Walnut.

The suspect also was driving a stolen car, deputies said.

LETTING EVERYONE KNOW

Marie Ayala of 896 S. Hamilton Ave., Pomona, had a sad Christmas story to tell—and she let everyone know. The sign was her brother's idea. Later, however, her fellow employees played Santa.

County rejects rock, gravel pit

SAN BERNARDINO (LCN) — A proposed rock and gravel pit at the northeast corner of 24th Street and East Avenue, Etiwanda, has been turned down by the Board of Supervisors.

Supervisor Daniel Mikesell said it should be denied because of extreme potential danger of flooding that would damage a school and the Etiwanda community.

Spend grant or lose it?—county will spend it

SAN BERNARDINO (LCN) — The county is faced with having to spend $27,591 of one-time state funds by June 30 or lose an allocation totalling $30,860. The money is available from unexpended Senate Bill 204 funds for last fiscal year from the Office of Alcohol Program Management (OAPM).

Robert E. Russell, administrator, Health Care Services Agency, recommended using $23,799 for a prevention-education support program of workshops, training and materials to be developed in the schools, as well as to provide information and education to professionals, business people and the general community.

Russell asked that $3,792 be earmarked for alcoholism contract agency program material support to assist contract agencies in providing alcoholism treatment services. Items to be purchased include advertisement brochures, alcoholism literature and record keeping materials.

According to Andrew Robertson, director of mental health for the county, the state has approved the plan to use the one-time funds for these proposed non-recurring expenses.

The supervisors approved the program.

Newcomer gets reappointed to handicap panel

Leland B. Newcomer, president of La Verne College, has been reappointed for a three-year term to President Ford's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

Newcomer has served on the committee for the past 10 years. His reappointment was made by Harold Russell, committee chairman.

"The primary concern of the committee is that the handicapped have fair and equal opportunities for employment," Newcomer said.

"A physically disabled person with a good mind has executive potential; it's our technology that handicaps them. There's been phenomenal progress in the past three or four years to insure the handicapped a fair shake."

Job training center at Casa Colina open to disabled vets

Disabled persons are invited to apply for the job training programs at the vocational development center at Casa Colina Hospital.

Openings are available at the center whose function is to train handicapped individuals in various trades and skills used at the hospital.

"What makes this vocational education program unique is that training occurs in a real, nonsheltered environment and prepares clients for the demands of a specific job by utilizing the real life professional staff at Casa Colina as instructors," said Frank Bertrand, program director.

The 12-week program was initiated one year ago through a $50,000 grant from the California State Department of Rehabilitation. Trainees in the program are screened for admission and sponsored by the department, which pays for their training.

Individuals can be trained in food service, maintenance, groundskeeping, housekeeping, as ward clerks, admitting clerks or nursing attendants.

Services provided the client include instruction in skills required by the occupation involved, counseling assistance in handling work-related problems, continual evaluation, a two-day seminar on job interviewing skills and job placement in the community. Seventy-five per cent of the clients who have completed the training program are now holding jobs in the community.

Inquiry may be made by contacting Ken McPerson at Casa Colina, 503-7521, ext. 357.

"Are You in Danger of Becoming a Neurotic?" is the title of the people quiz.

The quiz examines neurotic tendencies and gives clues on how much or how little you may suffer from fears and phobias.

A NEW LOOK

The Valley Vocational Center in the City of Industry has a new look for the holidays. Doug Kennedy, left, the center's technical illustrator, used five days and a dozen cans of paint to create a mural of the Seven Dwarfs on the side of the campus Child Care Center. His young assistants are Katherine Bolin, 4, center, and Vinnie Preziose, 4. The children want Snow White added.

GARAGES GUTTED

Pomona firemen responded Friday morning to a blaze which caused an estimated $700 damage to three stalls of an eight-car garage building detached from an apartment complex at 777 N. Park Ave. Cause of the fire is being investigated.

Landmark theater to close down

ATLANTA (UPI) — The ornate, mosque-like Fox Theater, a landmark near downtown Atlanta that has been a source of cultural pride for nearly half a century, will show its final film — "The Klansman" — Jan. 2.

The "Klansman," a critically panned Richard Burton-Lee Marvin film taken from a William Bradford Huely novel, is scheduled to end the Fox's final performance at 11:12 p.m.

"I'm going to put the chains on the doors on the 2nd, and after that, nobody will be let in again," said E. E. Whitaker, executive vice president of Georgia Theater Co., owner of the huge theater, said to be the last of its kind in the country.

"It takes a $1,000 a day to open the front door, and some days they don't take in $100," Whitaker said.

Opened at Christmas 1929, the Fox is a decaying fashion-plate of theater architecture, equipped with indoor weather effects and stage facilities once used by the Metropolitan Opera in its annual spring performances in Atlanta. The outside is elaborate brick and tile, with the peaked arches and spires of a Moslem mosque.

In recent years, the Fox has been showing the black-oriented action and martial arts genre of film fare.

A "Save the Fox" effort among Atlantans began last summer with a moratorium requested by Mayor Maynard Jackson to forestall destruction of the theater until May 1.

Numerous proposals were made to turn the lavish Fox into a music hall or cultural center of some sort, including an offer by local pornography kingpin Mike Thevis to buy the theater and give it to the city. But Thevis is now serving a federal prison term and other groups have apparently been unable to raise the money for the purchase.

The city block on which the Fox and a few other buildings stand has been sold to Southern Bell Telephone Co. for $3.5 million. The telephone company plans to tear down the buildings to make way for office space.

A Southern Bell spokesman, Dick Yarbrough, said Tuesday, "We'll step aside for anybody who can come up with the money to buy it from us, $3.5 million, and an alternative that would preserve it."

If no such plan is forthcoming by May 1, he said, "The plans are to tear it down and build an office building."

He added, "The owners told us they were going to tear it down, anyway."

EPA postpones new clean air rules for six months

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency has announced a six-month postponement in implementation of new clean air rules that would have a nationwide impact on construction of major shopping centers, sports stadiums, airports and highways.

Russell E. Train, head of the EPA, said the new regulations, originally scheduled to take effect Jan. 1, would be pushed back to June 30 because of "substantial public debate and misunderstanding" that has developed over the guidelines.

The new regulations require

EPA approval for the construction of "indirect sources" of air pollution — those that attract a large volume of motor vehicles.

The EPA says that if the facilities are improperly designed or located they "may cause violations of air quality standards because of motor vehicle congestion they cause."

Train said that the regulations will be discussed with congressional committees when they review the entire Clean Air Act early next year.

"I am convinced that some type of indirect source control is essential if we are to meet and maintain the health-protective air quality standards for pollutants primarily caused by motor vehicles," Train said.

"My action should give these committees an opportunity to review this important issue in an orderly fashion without the immediate pressures of a Jan. 1 deadline."

Several states already have or are planning to establish indirect source programs, the EPA said. Train urged continuation of such programs and stressed that the "temporary suspension" of the regulations "in no way affects EPA's technical or financial

'I can run in 1976 in a wheelchair'—Wallace

Army ads still seek gas manufacturer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Wednesday the Army is advertising for manufacturers of deadly binary nerve gas despite the Senate's ratification of the 1925 Geneva Protocol outlawing chemical warfare.

Aspin, member of the House Armed Services Committee and a former Pentagon economic adviser, said in his statement the Army was violating the Defense Appropriation Act which eliminated $5.8 million for the production of this form of chemical warfare.

The Army had no immediate comment on Aspin's charge.

Binary nerve gas is produced when two relatively harmless chemical compounds are mixed together. The two agents are delivered in an artillery shell in which the mixing process takes places during flight.

The Arms Control and Disarmament Agency has opposed production of binary nerve gas. Director Fred Ikle said it could complicate Senate ratification of the Geneva Protocol.

FUTURE MIRRORED IN THE PAST? — George Wallace, shown addressing the Democratic Convention in Miami Beach in 1972 is biding his time over the 1976 presidential race, saying he doesn't have to struggle for recognition because "people know my name."

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — George Wallace says he doesn't have to struggle for recognition like other Democratic contenders because "people know my name."

While his health is expected to be a major factor in the 1976 presidential campaign, the wheelchair-bound governor plays down its importance.

"I can run for president in a wheelchair," Wallace said in an interview. "Being in this wheelchair means I'm a paraplegic. It doesn't mean I can't be president."

"I'm not straining. I'm just going to sit back and see what they do about the Wallace problem."

The "Wallace problem" is that the Alabama governor is currently the frontrunner in a crowded but lackluster field of contenders for the Democratic nomination.

While other contenders are busy with intense speaking campaigns to gain national recognition, Wallace, who will seek the nomination for the fourth time, smugly said, "I don't have to. People know my name."

One reason the governor's campaign staff is optimistic about 1976 is the more than $1 million in contributions already raised for the campaign.

Even more important is the new Democratic party rule ending winner-take-all primaries, which means that Wallace cannot be shut out in any primary, and will gain at least marginal support in non-primary states.

Wallace contends he is "probably healthier now than I was before I was shot because I look after myself."

He has also said, however, that "with a man in my condition, you never know what's going to happen."

After the first of the year, Wallace is expected to enter a Birmingham hospital for a check-up and follow-up to a prostate operation he had about a year ago.

Wallace will not discuss in interviews what he hopes to get in 1976, but the plan is for him to go to the convention with enough delegates to lock up the nomination.

If that fails, he would settle for the vice presidential spot and would probably be content to have a hand in writing the party platform or picking the vice presidential nominee.

Some contenders for the presidential nomination have said they would not consider the governor as a running-mate, while others have said they would accept him. But all that talk seems academic to Wallace.

As one aide said, "When you want the nomination and the governor has the delegates, you begin to rethink your position on George Wallace."

Liberals battle to extend Ford's program of amnesty

By DAVID ANDERSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite indications President Ford's amnesty offer will not be extended beyond Jan. 31, liberal opponents of limited amnesty still have a major tool at their disposal to either extend or liberalize the existing program.

"The tool is the Congress. And according to some legislators, Congress can expand presidential pardons or amnesties through its own legislative powers even though it can not restrict the President's power to forgive."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has suggested that the present amnesty program be liberalized, expanded and extended beyond the Jan. 31 deadline which Ford placed on his earned-reentry offer when he first announced it this year.

Presidential Clemency Board Chairman Charles Goodell has said many times that Ford himself is not likely to extend the deadline.

Antiwar opponents of the present amnesty program have sharply criticized all three of its main aspects — clemency for those already convicted, the military deserter program, and the Justice Department draft resistance program.

The National Council of limited amnesty, has started circulating a report by the church-financed Clemency Information Center saying deserters processed through Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., are not getting the same treatment as are convicted evaders and deserters processed through Goodell's non-military clemency board.

The Clemency Information Center, along with some individual deserters and other groups, has sought court action to halt the military program but so far has been rebuffed in its efforts.

Next month, however, the group will get another try if it can convince a federal judge in Washington that the courts have jurisdiction over the earned-reentry program.

It is difficult to tell exactly how the clemency board is going to operate. So far it has made recommendations on only 18 cases, and all of those were individuals already serving jail sentences at the time Ford announced his clemency offer.

Some proponents of a blanket, unconditional amnesty

—as opposed to Ford's limited program — believe they stand a better chance of achieving their goal by pushing the incoming Congress rather than the President.

Rep. Robert Kastenmeir, D-Wis., whose House Judiciary subcommittee earlier this year held extensive hearings on the amnesty question, is one of those who contends Congress has the power to enact amnesty legislation on its own.

Drugs talk is scheduled

"The Drug Picture" will be the subject of Bill Hanks, guest speaker, Sunday at the 10:30 a.m. service of the Unitarian Society of Pomona Valley in Montclair.

Hanks is the coordinator of the Pomona Valley Drug and Substance Abuse Program. An ex-convict, he speaks with personal authority on drugs and the corrections system.

The public is invited to attend. Church school classes for children will be held at the same time.

College professor will be ordained

Frederick E. Sontag of Claremont will be ordained as a minister of the Congregational church at the Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational Sunday at 10 a.m.

He has been professor of philosophy at Pomona College for the past 23 years and is the author of nine published books. Sontag and his wife, Carol have two children in college. This year Mr. and Mrs. Sontag have been serving as faculty residents at Harwood Court, a Pomona College dormitory.

At the ordination ceremonies Sontag will deliver a sermon entitled "Go Tell It on the Mountain." The sermon will consider the text of Mark 16:16, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Sontag has previously, as a philosopher, dealt with the problem of defining and creating an appropriate theological system. This was the theme of his latest book, "The American Religious Experience."

Another theme in Sontag's writings has been the problem of evil and an imperfect world, considering God's perfection. His recent book, "God, Why Did You Do That?" deals with the problem.

His ordination sermon will consider the revitalization of the message of the Gospel and Christ's life and the need for renewal of individual lives through the gift of the Holy Ghost.

Cerritos stuns Giants

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

Claremont High head coach Jack Smith was all prepared to battle Ganesha tonight in the semifinals of the 34th Annual Chino High Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Unfortunately, all his plans were wiped out Friday afternoon. His Wolves will be playing in tonight's semis, but they won't be facing Ganesha.

The Giants, who set a tournament record with a 108-point victory over Temple City Thursday, were upset by a rugged Cerritos club in the quarterfinals Friday, 77-67.

Earlier in the day, Claremont had knocked off Bonita to reach the championship semis, 81-75.

That means instead of battling its San Antonio League rival Ganesha, Claremont will have to settle with playing against Cerritos in tonight's 7 p.m. matchup.

In the other championship semifinal clash, Miraleste will tangle with Chino. Miraleste, the runnerup in last year's tourney, bombed a young La Canada club Friday, 85-45. Host Chino advanced with a 51-41 victory over Alta Loma. Tipoff time for that one is scheduled for 8:30 p.m.

In consolation play Friday, University whipped Santa Ana, 82-62, Temple City nipped Montclair after two overtimes, 59-58, Upland upended Edgewood, 69-66, and Escondido slipped past Pacifica.

Action in the tourney resumes today at 12:30 when University battles Temple City in a consolation semifinal confrontation. In the other consolation semifinal game, Upland will tangle with Escondido at 2 p.m.

The semifinals for fourth place pits Bonita against Ganesha at 3:30 p.m. and La Canada against Alta Loma at 5 p.m.

"I was hoping we could play Ganesha," stated Claremont's Smith. "In fact, I kind of expected to. I've been taking notes on them. Ganesha runs that full-court press and they do a pretty good job with it. I would have liked to have played against them to see what we could do."

Caruthers has curable cancer, says he's lucky

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jimmy Caruthers, fifth in the U.S. Auto Club championship car points standings in 1974, said Friday night that exploratory surgery has discovered a malignant tumor in his chest and he will begin cobalt treatments Monday.

The 29-year-old from La Palma, Calif., former USAC national midget champion, was released from Tustin (Calif.) Community Hospital Friday.

"But I'm a lucky person, I really am," Caruthers said. "My doctor told me of all the types of cancer, I have the one that is easiest to cure by radiation."

Caruthers said he hoped to be ready for the 1975 championship car opening event, the California 500 at Ontario March 9.

"My doctor hasn't given me any guarantees," he noted, "but he's real optimistic and he doesn't think there'll be any problems. He says his main concern now is to get me back racing."

"Of course, cobalt does drain some people. There's a question if my body will be able to stand taking treatments

"We are playing Cerritos instead," added the skipper of the defending tourney champions. "They are not a bad ball club either."

In a well-played contest, Claremont opened a one-point lead from the end of the first quarter to a seven-point spread by halftime, 46-39.

(Please turn to page 8, Col. 3)

for five days a week for four solid weeks.

"But as far as I'm concerned, I'll be at Ontario. I don't want to miss any races."

Caruthers underwent exploratory surgery last weekend after entering the hospital Dec. 17. He first went to his doctor last month because of back pains.

"The tumor isn't inoperable," he declared. "But my doctor thinks it's a lot safer to cure it with cobalt than cut it out."

"I've got a lot of faith in my doctor and I feel damn good considering I just had surgery a week ago."

In 1974, Caruthers finished second to Johnny Rutherford in the Pocono 500 and was fourth in the California 500. He won $101,019.

"I don't feel sorry for myself," he remarked. "I feel damn lucky. What good is it to feel sorry for yourself? Of all the malignancies, I've got the easiest one to cure."

"If you've got something wrong with you, you've got to get it fixed and go on about your business."

Football writers honor Zorn at Rose Bowl fete

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

PASADENA — Cal Poly's Jim Zorn and Cal State L.A.'s Rick Holoubeck were named co-winners of the College Division Player of the Year Award at the Football Writers' Rose Bowl Luncheon at Annandale Country Club here Friday.

Zorn, 6-2, 210-pound quarterback for the Broncos, completed 128 of 261 passes for 1722 yards and six touchdowns. He also gained 542 yards rushing on 180 carries and scored 11 touchdowns.

Holoubeck, the 5-9, 165-pound signal caller for the Diablos, completed 91 of 201 passes for 1465 yards and 13 touchdowns.

Each player was named player of the week once during the regular season.

In a tabulation of writers and coaches present, the vote favored USC in the Rose Bowl game, 34-21. The 34 picking the Trojans did so by an average point spread of 6½ points. The 21 picking the Buckeyes did so by an average of 10½ points.

Usually the coaches of both competing teams are present. However, it was announced that John McKay of USC had a touch of the flu and Tory was represented by assistant Dave Levy.

Woody Hayes, who had been a model of decorum and cooperation in the two official press conferences held since arriving in Southern California was on the attack Friday. Woody evidently has himself all psyched up and will now use the next few days to do the same to his team.

Given the microphone, Hayes attacked in order: "silly new recruiting rules, one platoon football, the New York Times, a network television program about football injuries, and, in one final all-inclusive blast, 'people who don't know a damn thing about it telling us what to do.'"

What apparently fired Woody up was the thought of stringent recruiting rules. He had just finished extolling the virtues of tailback Archie Griffin whom he called, "the greatest football player I've ever had at Ohio St. and the most popular football player I've ever had at Ohio St."

It must have flashed through Woody's mind that he had more difficulty recruiting Griffin under the new rules.

"I can't even buy a prospect a hamburger and a milkshake," complained Hayes. "I'd be buying him. Hell, I don't buy football players. I sell 'em."

Hayes again called college football "the best game in any sport, professional or amateur." Then he remembered that some of the coaches and athletic directors are advocating a return to one-platoon football because of the cost.

"That would be going back to the Neanderthal days," barked Woody. "College football today is the most complex, intricate, exciting game there is. The defenses are so intricate that you can't make your adjustments before the ball is snapped. We make our adjustments after the ball is snapped."

Pro football was Hayes' next target. "We have a better game than they have," he exclaimed. "Our offense is more diversified. We didn't stand around complaining, picketing for a month last summer."

Hayes' complaint about the New York Times was that a story he read about the cost of football at Ohio St. didn't tell anything about the good football does and how many other sports (26) it supports.

The picture painted by the television program on football injuries was entirely incorrect according to Hayes. "I've never had a permanent injury to one of my players in all the years I've been coaching," he rebutted.

Getting back to one platoon football, Hayes said it would cut down the overall performance. "We're in competition with pro football and other things for the entertainment dollar, you're damn right we are," said Hayes his neck reddening to the color of the Ohio St. uniforms.

"I want to continue to put on a good show," he continued. "And I resent people who don't know a damn thing about it telling us what to do."

Catfish playing a waiting game

AHOSKIE, N.C. (UPI) — On the eve of Saturday's bidding deadline for Jim "Catfish" Hunter's services, the Oakland A's pitching ace said he still will wait another week or 10 days "and go visit some cities" before deciding which of a half-dozen million dollar offers to accept.

Hunter, the American League's Cy Young award winner, said after conferring with representatives of the Pittsburgh Pirates, the last of the originally scheduled teams to meet with him, that he wants "to go visit some cities and check out living conditions in them."

On Friday afternoon, the Texas Rangers made a return visit to Hunter, the third club to make a second visit. Earlier, the New York Yankees and Montreal Expos had paid a second call upon the A's righthander.

"It's a lot different this time," said Yankee scout Clyde Klutz, who originally signed Hunter for the A's in 1964. "Every club in baseball wants him. Only a few aren't in the bidding for one reason or another."

Ernest L. Evans, one of Hunter's lawyers, said representatives from at least 14 major league clubs, "to the best of my recollection," had been to Ahoskie for negotiations. Evans said other clubs, which did not send representatives to this small northeastern North Carolina town, have "conducted some very serious talks over the telephone."

Among those clubs dropping out of the bidding Friday were the Cincinnati Reds, who informed Hunter's chief legal adviser Carlton Cherry via telegram that "after a careful consideration of all the ramifications and involvements that would be part of reaching an agreement, we feel the Cincinnati Reds must drop out of the bidding."

Evans said the list of teams would probably be narrowed further shortly and that "there probably will be some more negotiations" before a contract is signed.

"Some clubs have indicated they wanted to be talked to again before a contract is signed," Evans said. "As far as cutting it down to five teams or to six teams, I can't give you a specific number along those lines."

Hunter, who became a free agent Dec. 14 in an historic decision that came as a result of A's owner Charles O. Finley's failure to comply to the terms of the pitcher's contract, resumed talks with the various club representatives after a Christmas holiday break with his wife children.

In Bloomington, Minn., Calvin Griffith, president of the Twins, said, "acquiring Hunter would be a once-in-a-lifetime," but that "we don't want to go broke."

"There are so many things involved in this case," Griffith said, "like contract gratuities for his children and so forth."

Johnson peps UCLA, 78-62

COLLEGE PARK Md. (UPI) — Marques Johnson came off the bench to spur slow starting UCLA to a 78-62 win over St. Bonaventure Friday night, setting the stage for a battle of the unbeatens against Maryland Saturday night.

The seventh ranked Terrpins swarmed over Georgia Tech 105-67 in their opener of the Maryland Invitational Tournament to gain the finals against the number three Bruins.

Confronted with the deliberate ball control tactics of St. Bonaventure, UCLA managed only a single field goal in the first nine minutes of play and trailed 8-2. At that point, Johnson began his take charge role with a pair of baskets as the Bruins tied the contest.

With the score tied 10-10, UCLA, helped by Johnson, pumped in 12 unanswered points to build a half time lead of 30-13.

Johnson, with 12 points in the first half, led the Bruins scoring with 14. The Bruins kept coming throughout the second half as Richard Washington had 12 points and Dave Myers 11 before coach John Wooden rested his first stringers most of the second half.

In a losing cause, Gregg Sanders was high for the Indians with 18 points while 5-foot-6-inch spark plug Howie Harrison tipped in with 17.

The Terps scored 13 straight points in a five minute period at the opening of the game to pull to a 15-2 lead and went to the dressing room ahead 52-33 at the half.

Sheppard scored nine of his 11 second half points in the first seven minutes and the Terps built up a 30 point lead with 12 minutes left.

Mike Bottorff, a 5-11 guard and Bob Davis led the Yellow Jackets scoring with 12 points apiece.

Maryland's John Lucas, appearing for the first time since cracking a collar bone in the season's first game, had 18 points.

Lucius leads Lakers again

CHICAGO (UPI) — Lucius Allen scored 37 points and Gale Goodrich added 25 Friday night to lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 105-83 NBA triumph over the Chicago Bulls. It was the Bulls' second loss in the last three games.

The Lakers trailed only in the opening two minutes of play, by two points, and then opened up a 10-point lead in the first period and a 17-point margin in the second. They led 57-42 at the half.

The Bulls, plagued by poor shooting in the first half, rallied in the second half and pulled within three points in the fourth period. But Goodrich got hot and dropped 13 points to spur the Lakers.

Norm Van Lier was Chicago's leading scorer with 21 points.

Hank Stram rode on the shoulders of his players in 1970 after clinching Super Bowl berth.

Stram fired as Kansas City coach

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Kansas City coach Hank Stram, the little general who became known for his red vest, rolled-up program and winning teams, was fired Friday by Chiefs owner Lamar Hunt.

The 51-year-old Stram had seven years to go on a 10-year contract at an estimated $100,000 per season. Hunt said the contract would be paid off season by season as long as Stram remained unemployed.

Hunt said he made a final decision only Friday morning.

"I'm sure as a coach and a professional man, Hank was disappointed," said Hunt.

Stram, the only head coach the Chiefs have ever had, did not attend the news conference at Arrowhead Stadium and his son answered a telephone call at his home by saying his father "wanted to be alone" and was unavailable for comment.

Hunt, who founded the Chiefs as the Dallas Texans in 1960, had stuck with Stram through good times and adversity in the 15 years of their association. But three back-to-back mediocre seasons, capped by this year's 5-9 record, proved too much.

"I think Hank is a very good football coach," Hunt emphasized. "But I think the circumstances and chemistry of the organization dictated a change."

Hunt turned the reins of the organization over to Jack Steadman, executive vice president and general manager. Steadman will resume the duties of contract negotiations with players, a function Stram took over when he signed the 10-year contract after the 1971 season.

Hunt admitted it was "an emotional decision, the first time I've been through something like this."

Hunt said Steadman would become immediately involved in a search for a new head coach.

"We have not put together a good list at this time," Steadman said, "But we're going for the best guy available for the job."

Hunt said Stram was not offered a job to remain in the organization, and that head talent scout Tommy O'Boyle would be given more of a say in the future concerning the Chiefs' draft policies.

Outlaws too rough to play

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

Bob Lorenzo grew up in Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada and started playing hockey when he was four years old. Thirty years later, Lorenzo has to laugh when potential opponents tell him his Ontario Outlaws are too rough to play.

"I don't know how you can play hockey without being a little rough," says Lorenzo, who organized the Outlaws about six months ago.

"We're having trouble finding competition but we hope to get enough teams together to form a six-team league."

Lorenzo hasn't had any difficulty filling the team's 16 uniforms, however. Even with jobs, about 15 players show up regularly for the pick-up games the Outlaws play at the Ontario Ice Bowl.

Most of the players are long-time valley residents. Captain Mike LeBouffe, was the leading scorer on the San Diego State hockey team last year.

"I was surprised," said Lorenzo, "that so many of the players have had hockey experience. They're better than novice and most are from Ontario. Only three are Canadians."

The players' ages range from 17-40 with the average age being 25 according to Lorenzo. Although some of the players have played semi-pro hockey, the league Lorenzo is trying to form would be strictly amateur.

So far there are teams from West Covina (Bruins), La Habra (Crusaders) and Costa Mesa (Canadians) which are interested in forming the league.

"I hope that it will develop into a local league that will give guys a chance to play who probably wouldn't make it as a pro," Lorenzo said.

The Outlaws got together

by chance at the Ontario rink by showing up to play hockey on hockey nights, Monday and Wednesday.

"We just got to talking about how we should have a team," Lorenzo explained. "And that's how it got started."

Some of the players called it a huff 'n puff league — meaning that the guys who showed up were over the hill athletically and would re-live the fantasies of youth on the ice.

Lorenzo has apparently put together a rough-and-tumble team from that rag-tag crew.

Spectator interest in the team has also been a surprise to Lorenzo who says about 150 fans were on hand for the team's first outing last summer.

"We're going to start charging admission for adults," he said. "It will help the rink put and hopefully pay for our rental of the ice."

The admission charge will go into effect Jan. 8 when the Outlaws host San Diego State in a game which is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. Adults will be admitted for 50 cents and children may watch free of charge. The Outlaws are scheduled to have a rematch with San Diego State, Jan. 15.

Winternationals

Drag races coming soon

Officials of the National Hot Rod Association are bracing for a record breaking 15th edition of the NHRA Winternationals drag races, Jan. 30-Feb. 2, as a result of the large early entry response to the West's oldest major motorsports attraction.

The Winternationals, second oldest of all drag racing events behind only the U.S. Nationals, will feature a cash and contingency awards purse of almost $250,000 with championships to be decided in all eight basic eliminator brackets — Top Fuel, Funny Car, Pro Stock, Pro Comp, Competition, Modified, Super Stock and Stock.

Among the most prominent early entrants in the event is defending champion Gary Beck of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada — the most outstanding Top Fuel driver in the nation over the last two seasons.

Last year, Beck tied a one season record by advancing to the final round in four different major events and set a new record by winning three times in one year. In addition to the Winternationals, which he dominated completely with a barrage of five-second elapsed times, Beck also won the Spring Nationals at Columbus, Ohio, and the Grand National-Molson at Montreal, Canada. He was runner-up in the Gatornationals at Gainesville, Fla.

Stiffest challenges in this year's competition at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds track in Pomona should come from Don Garlits of Seftner, Fla., winner of the NHRA Supernationals at Ontario the last two seasons; Dave Set-les of Houma, La., who drove the Candies and Hughes machine to a Gatornationals victory and three runner-up finishes in 1974; and James Warren of Bakersfield, low qualifier at the 1974 Winternationals and Supernationals.

The Funny Car lineup should be equally formidable with strong bids expected from a host of California standouts including two-time defending U.S. Nationals champion Don Prudhomme of Granada Hills, national record holder Dale Pulde (6.16 seconds, 233 miles per hour) of Van Nuys, and newly crowned Supernationals king Dave Condit of Whittier.

Most interesting, however, may be Pro Stock and Pro Comp eliminators — both unknown quantities in that new 1975 rules are expected to better equalize the competition across the board. Of particular interest will be the performance of the Ford Pro Stocks which have dominated the bracket the last two seasons.

Among the Ford drivers in the event will be Bob Glidden, the reigning World Points Champion and two-time defending U.S. Nationals winner, and Wayne Gapp, the 1973 World Champion and runner-up to Glidden last season. Also closely watched will be defending and three-time Winternationals Pro Stock champion Bill "Grumpy" Jenkins of Malvern, Pa.

Jenkins, who won Winternationals Pro Stock championships for Chevrolet in 1970, 1972 and 1974, is expected to debut a brand new Chevy Monza Pro Stock at Pomona.

Time trials, qualifying and technical inspection will consume the first two days of the event with class eliminations and continued qualifying on Saturday, Feb. 1. Final eliminations are scheduled to begin at 11:30 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 2.

Prefontaine enters meet

LOS ANGELES — Steve Prefontaine, America's all-time distance running great, has turned in his entry for the two mile at the 16th annual Sun Bowl Invitational indoor.

The event is slated Saturday night, Jan. 18, over the brand new board track at the Sports Arena. Patterned after San Diego's lightning course, the new track reputedly is the world's fastest.

Pre holds all the American records at distances ranging from 2000 to 10,000 meters. He had another fine year in 1974, leading the world in three events.

Steve's 12:51.4 for 3 miles, his 26:51.8 for six miles and 27:43.6 for 10,000 top the world ranks.

Steve will be shooting for his own American Indoor mark of 8:20.4, set in 1974 in the San Diego Indoor.

Among Steve's opponents will be Olympic marathon champion Frank Shorter, a former American record holder indoors at two miles.

Also entered to date are former Olympic 1500-meter semi-finalist Bob Wheeler, ex-Duke, Gordon Innes, UCLA's standout steeplechaser and Rich Kimball, Oregon State freshman who was the top prep miler-2 miler in the nation last spring.

Fiesta Bowl is offering aerial show

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Pass-happy Brigham Young and ground-oriented Oklahoma State square off this afternoon in the fourth annual Fiesta Bowl.

The 50,000-seat Sun Devil Stadium was sold out for the 4 p.m. (EST) kickoff. The temperature was expected to be in the 50s, with a 20 per cent chance of rain.

KNXT (2), 1 p.m.

The Fiesta Bowl was assured of a new champion, host Arizona State having won the initial three contests. Oklahoma State of the Big Eight was a 10-point favorite over 15th-ranked Brigham Young, the Western Athletic Conference champion.

Coaches Jim Stanley of OSU and Lavell Edwards of BYU disputed the experts.

Stanley said he believed the Cowboys should be favored because they are from the Big Eight and "I would consider this one strictly a tossup."

Edwards said, "The type of football they play in the Big Eight and the type of football we play in our conference is entirely different. I don't think they've seen a lot of the things we do offensively in our conference. I'd rate it a tossup."

Statistics indicated Stanley's assessment of the game as "a classic matchup of run versus pass" would be correct.

Oklahoma State's Wishbone attack gained 2,378 yards rushing and went to the air only 118 times for 824 yards during a 6-5 season. Brigham Young passed for 2,314 yards, which ranked sixth in the nation, and ran for 1,410 yards as the Cougars won their last seven games after losing their first three and tying the fourth.

Each team's defense was well prepared to face the other's strength. Oklahoma State, 10th in total defense, allowed an average of only 86.4 yards passing, and Brigham Young was the nation's fourth best defense against the run, allowing an average of 111.5 yards.

The Cowboys had the only significant injury — leading rusher George Palmer, out with a knee injury suffered in the Nebraska game. Stanley said he planned to divide ball-carrying duties almost equally among freshmen Terry Miller and Skip Taylor and senior Leonard Thompson.

Vanderbilt thrilled to play in a bowl

ATLANTA (UPI) — Don't poor mouth the Peach Bowl around the Vanderbilt Commodores.

Saturday's 9 a.m. PST game against Texas Tech may not rank up there with the likes of the Orange Bowl. But it's the first bowl of any type the Commodores have invited to in 19 years.

Just being in a bowl, any bowl, is an incentive for our program," said Commodore Coach Steve Sloan who has made tremendous progress in his two years at Vanderbilt.

The year (1972) before Sloan took over, the Commodores were 3-8 and had had only one winning season (5-4-1 in 1965) in 13 years. Sloan, still not 30 years old, almost had a winner his first season, winding up 5-6 in '73 when the Commodores lost by three points, 20-17, to Tennessee in their final game.

This year, Vanderbilt was 7-3-1 (the tie coming when Tennessee scored eight points in the closing seconds) for its best record since 1935. That was the season that Vanderbilt made the only other bowl appearance in its 84-year football history, beating Auburn in the Gator Bowl.

The Commodores, boasting the top yardage-gaining offense (415 yards per game in the Southeastern Conference, are favored to make their all-time bowl record 2-0 Saturday. But Sloan warned his team Friday to expect a tough contest.

"They (Texas Tech) have a lot of overall quickness," said Sloan. "I think it will be a close game, but I don't know whether it will be a high scoring game. They are a good defensive team. They've been running the veer (which Vanderbilt switched to this past season) for years, so they know all about it."

Texas Tech, making its 14th bowl appearance and its fourth in the past five years, isn't as impressed at being here. But Coach Jim Carlen, who is switching to South Carolina with most of his staff as soon as the Peach Bowl game is over, said the Red Raiders are playing to win.

"We're a close knit group and we want to win this game," said Carlen. "A lot of people felt we didn't deserve to be in a bowl after we lost our last two games and wound up 6-4-1. That's given our players added incentive to win."

The matchup, a threat of possible rain and the fact the game will be televised locally soon after it ends (the taped telecast starts at noon PST) have all hurt the gate for the Peach Bowl. Even the most optimistic estimates are for less than 40,000 to show up at 58,800-seat Atlanta Stadium for the game.

Texas Tech was supposed to sell 6,000 tickets, but apparently sold less than 500.

"We didn't learn about this until late Monday," said Peach Bowl director George Crumley. "We're trying to increase our sales locally, but that is not easy to do."

Vanderbilt's offense got a real boost this week when it was learned that quarterback Fred Fisher, the 1973 SEC passing champ, has recovered from a shoulder injury that sidelined him the last month of the '74 season.

David Lee, who wound up as this year's SEC passing champ, will start Saturday but Fisher, reported "throwing better than before," is expected to see action.

Both teams have several outstanding runners. Senior Jamie O'Rourke and junior Lonnie Sadler rushed for 833 and 610 yards respectively for Vanderbilt while sophomore Larry Isaac and senior John Garner rushed for 671 and 506 yards respectively for Texas Tech.

"Texas Tech is one of those teams that is really better than its record," said Sloan. "Remember, this is a team that whipped Texas (26-3) when it was healthy, but has since been hurt by a lot of injuries."

"Injuries and inconsistencies," injected Carlen. "Those are things we hope we can overcome Saturday and show our critics just how good Texas Tech can actually be."

Pro scouts await East-West battle

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — It's hard to tell who is more apprehensive about Saturday's 50th anniversary Shrine East-West football game at Stanford Stadium — the players or the pro scouts.

Except for the hours they sleep, the 60 players here — 30 on each side — have been birddogged every step of the way during the last eight days leading up to the game.

Pro scouts books are full of all sorts of notes from how a player handles himself on the field to what he does off it on his own time.

It's the most scouted game of any I've ever seen," said Oakland Raiders super sleuth Ron Colf. "There is little the scouts don't know about every player here. The talent is so deep that it won't surprise me if every single player for this game goes within the first three rounds of our (NFL) draft next month."

The two most sought after players, or so it would seem by talking with the scouts, are Oakland Trophy winner Randy White of Maryland and California quarterback Steve Bartkowski, both All-Americans.

"They will go 1-2 in the draft said Wolf, whose Raiders won't be picking until nearly the end of each round. Depending on how Oakland does in the playoffs and or-

Cal Poly holds clinic for women gymnasts

A four-day clinic for high school women gymnasts, sponsored by the women's gymnastic team, is currently underway on the Cal Poly campus.

The event, called a "concentrated workout" by its organizer Bruce Coulter, coach of Cal Poly's team, has been organized in response to a fast-growing interest in the sport, especially for women.

Some 150 women from local high schools are attending the 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily sessions, which will be directed by nine of the Pomona Valley's top coaches in the field and assisted by members of the Cal Poly team. Beginning, intermediate and advanced instruction will be given in tumbling and in four Olympic competitive events — floor exercise; balance beam; uneven parallel bars; and vaulting.

The Cal Poly gymnastic team, with a roster of 20 members, is the first competitive team the university has had in this sport for women. Their season, which begins Saturday, Jan. 18 at 1 p.m. in the Kellogg gym, against UC Santa Barbara, includes a competition with eight other league teams — UCLA, USC, Chapman College, San Diego State, and the California state universities at Long Beach, Fullerton, Northridge and Los Angeles.

Coulter, who came to Cal Poly in 1970, competed in gymnastics at Cal State, Los Angeles from 1965-69 and was an NCAA national champion in vaulting in 1968. He says that the clinic offers participants the chance to work with a wide range of instructors in "a highly charged atmosphere of learning."

The clinic closes Sunday.

Vachon earns recognition

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The attractive blonde approached the trio of Los Angeles Kings and smiled appreciatively.

"You're a wonderful hockey player," the excited fan said, talking to Rogie Vachon and ignoring the two other Kings, veteran Bob Nevin and Tom Williams, who also had just finished lunch.

"I go to watch you all the time. You're my favorite player. You're really good."

Vachon, the talented goaltender of the Kings, is beginning to be noticed in a city that has other sports on its mind. The National Hockey League is beginning to notice him, too. Ken Dryden of Montreal and the Chicago Black Hawks' Tony Esposito are still regarded as the best goalies in the NHL but Vachon also is on the verge of superstar status—if he's not already there.

"This isn't a hockey town but I can drive on the freeway now and maybe people recognize me," he said. "That's kind of unusual for a hockey player here. Sometimes it's a nice feeling to have people recognize you."

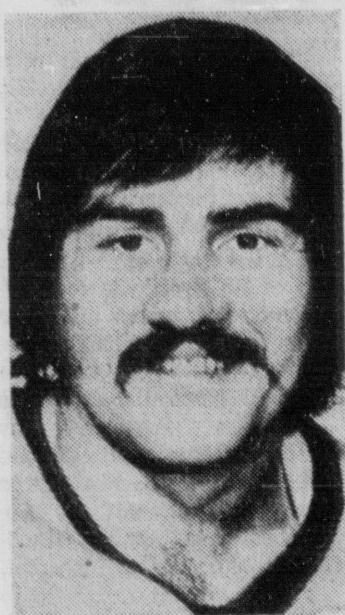

"But I try to keep it all in perspective. I know I'm having a good year. In fact, for me, it's a great year. You can't get overconfident, though."

"I know if I play 55 or 60 games, I'm not going to play all the games like I have the first two and a half months of the season. I'm going to be up and down. But it's nice—really nice—to have a start like this."

"And it's nice with all the good goalies in the league to have some people tell you you're the best. It gives you a very good feeling."

The Kings landed Vachon, the smallest goalie in the NHL at 5-foot-7, for four players in a trade Nov. 4, 1971. In the beginning, he admitted, it was hard being a King.

"It wasn't fun at all," Vachon said. "We didn't have any system. We were changing coaches. We had two coaches the same year. It was just a mess. Some guys were 25 pounds overweight after the season. Instead of going down, they were going up. It was just like a vacation for some of the players."

ROGIE VACHON

But Bob Pulford, the current Kings' coach, has changed that all around. The Kings made the playoffs last season for the first time in five years and now they're off to a blazing start.

Montreal's Canadiens were supposed to win the NHL Division 3 going away but the Kings have other plans. It should be a battle down to the wire.

"The game is fun again," Vachon said. "It's fun to win. You could see it coming last season. We played well last season. When Philadelphia won the Stanley Cup, that gave us a lot of confidence, too."

"We felt if they could do it, we could do it, too. Because of our start, we know now we can beat anybody in the league. We know we can go into places like Boston and Montreal and win."

The Canadiens had Vachon on their roster for four seasons and parts of two others before trading him. In 1967-68, he shared the Vezina Trophy with Gump Worsley.

"I asked to be traded and they accommodated me," the Kings' ace goaltender said. "I didn't want to be the second goalie and I knew Ken Dryden was going to play most of the games in the future. I didn't want to play 20 games a year. I wanted to play regularly."

Vachon, 29, believes goals against averages are deceiving. He cites California's Gilles Meloche as a prime example. In his first year as a King, he had a 4.04 average. It was 2.80 last season.

"You have to look at the number of shots on net," Vachon noted. "Meloche will have 45 to 50 shots against him lots of times. No wonder he's got an average of above four."

"Maybe if he'd play for a team like Montreal or the New York Rangers, his average would be around two."

"I think a good ratio of shots on goal to goals allowed is 13. As far as I'm concerned, that's a good game for a goalie."

"I know it was tough when I first came to the Kings. Montreal had won a Stanley Cup. Then all of a sudden I was having 45 to 50 shots a game on me."

Does his lack of size hurt him in the nets?

"It's a little disadvantage because I give up more space than a bigger goalie," he answered. "But you don't have to be really big and strong to be a good hockey player. And sometimes I might be a little quicker than some of the big guys in the nets."

The arctic tern is the greatest bird traveler. It migrates farther than any other bird.

The arctic tern is a graceful black and white sea bird with a forked tail and long wings. During the summer the arctic tern nests in the arctic. In the fall it begins a long journey to the most southern parts of the world, the antarctic!

An arctic tern's roundtrip journey may be as long as 22,000 miles.

Birds that travel are called "migrants," and their journeys are called "migrations." Scientists learn how far birds travel when they migrate through bird banding. The birds are captured in a trap and aluminum bands are fastened around their legs. Then they are released unharmed.

When caught again at a different place, code numbers on the bands show how far they have traveled from the place where they were banded.

In this way the route of the arctic tern was discovered.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Some additional discipline is required if you hope to keep your household budget in line. Buy only what's needed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll have trouble keeping the facts straight regarding something you were told when you go to repeat it to someone else.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It will take some skillful persuasion on your behalf to get backing or assistance you may need from another. Have a good story ready.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A plan you have is a good one, so don't let one who doesn't comprehend it punch petty holes in it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have trouble keeping secrets today. You're apt to talk about something very personal and confidential to the wrong listeners.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Others will carry tales to you about a friend of long standing. Weigh their words carefully, being aware they have an ax to grind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep persons out of your business or career problems who have no official role in them. Their advice will only confuse you more.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Pleasurable plans you've made for yourself today will be disrupted, if you let one whose ideas don't jibe with yours in on them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is not a good day for you to become too deeply immersed in business affairs. Postpone them until you're more commercially minded.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's hard for you to stick with an over-all game plan, even though you know you should. Instead you'll make too many short-range adjustments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you find yourself with a bit of a surplus, it would be a good idea to repay an old indebtedness in part.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Spend today with friends who know how to enjoy themselves, rather than with those you feel you must entertain every minute.

Your Birthday Dec. 29

There will be a good market for your creativity this coming year if you'll take the pains to look around. The right associate can be found for ideas you can't swing on your own.

Spends Christmas Eve locked in a building

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Merchant seaman James Rogers Jr., stopped for a few holiday drinks Christmas eve, then climbed a building and slipped a flight of stairs to find a men's room.

When he came back down the stairs, the building's glass door was locked and everyone had left for the holiday.

Sitting glumly on the staircase, Rogers spent Christmas Eve and half Christmas day staring out at the empty street waiting for someone to come along.

Finally at midmorning

Christmas day someone walked past and Rogers tapped frantically on the glass and pleaded for help.

Police arrived and puzzled how to get him out.

"I had been bar hopping," he told a reporter through the mail slot. "Say, I'm dying of thirst...could you get me some water, or some cigarettes?"

Police finally traced a key to a building tenant employee who lived 35 miles away in Palo Alto.

Rogers was let out shortly before noon Christmas. 17 hours after he was locked in.

Japanese prime minister reveals financial status

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Takeo Miki, in an unprecedented move in Japanese political history, has made public his private assets totaling $684,866.

The list of Miki's assets included a $580,000 private residence in Tokyo, a $7,000 summer villa in Karuizawa, about 70 miles north of Tokyo, principal negotiable securities and bank deposits.

Miki, in distributing the list to newsmen through Deputy Chief Cabinet Secretary Toshiki Kaifu, said his action was designed to fulfill his own public commitment and not to set a precedent for other politicians.

He did not intend to compel other cabinet ministers to follow suit, he added.

Miki, 67, made the commitment upon assuming his post Dec. 9, succeeding Kakuei Tanaka, who stepped down under corruption charges.

In Rhodesia

Smith retreat clearly long and grudging

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Rhodesia's iron-willed Premier Ian D. Smith appears to be bending slowly to demands of his white and black neighbors that he enter into meaningful negotiations with Rhodesia's black majority looking toward eventual black rule.

But even though short of support from the neighboring Republic of South Africa and with eventual victory for the majority a seeming certainty, he already is making it clear his retreat will be a long and grudging one — lasting, he hopes, throughout his lifetime.

It was on the issue of black rule that Smith nine years ago declared unilateral independence from Britain, and in succeeding years defied not only Britain but worldwide economic and diplomatic sanctions imposed by the United Nations.

Two events forced a drastic change of tactics.

One was the military coup which toppled the Portuguese government and led to the decision granting independence to former Portuguese colonies in Africa, among them, Mozambique.

With Mozambique scheduled to go over to black rule in June, Rhodesia lost an important buffer on its northern border and faced probable loss of access to the ports of Beira and Lourenco Marques.

The second was a move by Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa toward making his own peace with black African nations. While easing only slightly his own white supremacist policies, he urged Rhodesia to negotiate with black nationalists and announced his own determination to withdraw from Rhodesia the South African forces he had sent to Rhodesia to fight black guerrillas.

In a conference at Lusaka, Zambia, attended by the presidents of Zambia, Tanzania and Botswana, feuding black nationalist factions from Rhodesia agreed to form a common front.

Under further prodding from South Africa, Smith announced agreement on a cease-fire and said jailed nationalist leaders would be released.

Government regulations also were relaxed slightly to permit black leaders to hold political meetings in advance of a conference to be held early next year to determine the country's future.

The black insurgency movement which broke out in December, 1972, is estimated to have taken the lives of 500 guerrillas, 50 members of the Rhodesian security forces and more than 100 civilians.

Whether the initial rise in black hopes is to be justified will be determined by next spring's conference.

The blacks have said they will not agree to any long interim government.

Prodding Smith toward a settlement has been another suggestion from the South African government. Vorster has proposed that those among Rhodesia's 5.5 million blacks with 5 years of secondary schooling be permitted to vote. Such a plan, it was said, would permit Rhodesia's 270,000 whites to hold power a few years but that blacks probably would take over the legislature in five years.

Hand-shaker sets record

UTICA, N.Y. (UPI) — Preston J. Stockman, at 19, claims to have set a new world's record for shaking hands, besting no less an adversary than President Theodore Roosevelt.

Stockman, a sophomore at the State University at Binghamton, said he shook the hands of 8,643 persons Monday, breaking the previous record of 8,513 set by Roosevelt at a New Year's Day White House reception in 1907.

Stockman, who unsuccessfully attempted a year ago to break the 7½ day record for time spent in a shower, said he started in front of a suburban shopping center at 10 a.m. with a buddy keeping a count of the hands of shoppers he gaped. He finished shortly after 9 p.m.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

Honored by Lions

P-B columnist named American of the year

Paul Harvey, columnist for the Progress-Bulletin has been named American of the Year by Lions-International, the service club which raises funds for eye-related charities. The award will be given to Harvey at the seventh annual Lions-American Bowl football game between the North-South College All Star teams on Jan. 5 in Tampa, Fla.

John Balbo, president of the Lions-International, will make the presentation at half-time before a 200-station national TV audience.

When notified this week in Chicago that he was to be cited, Harvey said the award should be reversed. "I should be honoring Lions-International for the excellent work the clubs have done for millions of sightless people around the world. I am especially honored to be chosen by so illustrious a group."

All proceeds from the bowl game will benefit various sight charities of 50 Lions clubs on the West Coast of Florida. Among the recipients will be the Florida Foundation for the Blind, St. Petersburg Eye Clinic, Camp Seaburg, Tampa Lighthouse for the Blind, Leader Dogs for the Blind and the Greater Tampa Sight Fund.

Harvey was chosen as Exemplary of the Year for his exemplary work in newspapers, radio and television to further the celebration of the American way of life, according to Lions' spokesmen. Some former holders of the title are Art Linkletter for his fight against drug use, David P. Reynolds for his Project SOAR, Ray Crock for his philanthropic activities and William Lear for his contributions to aviation.

Chewable toys help parakeet many ways

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Jabbers, my parakeet, likes to chew on things. For his beak mostly, I guess. I give him soft wood to chew, mostly, along with some raw carrot. What about cuttlebone? I used to give that to my canary, and she liked to chew on it. Shouldn't? K.M.

DEAR K.M.: Budgies benefit from chewables because they have to relieve boredom and provide the bill with needed exercise. Even more important, cuttlebone supplies needed calcium of a type which can be readily utilized by caged birds. Since their seedy diet tends to be low in utilizable calcium, the cuttlebone is doubly valuable.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is phenol really that poisonous to cats? I went to the store to find a disinfectant without any phenol. They had four different brands and all three are phenol-something-or-other on the label. It did say on each can that they were safe to use around pets. I bought the one I knew best, a nationally advertised brand. But I want to check with someone for sure before I use it. — H.D.

DEAR H.D.: Phenol-based derivatives are the basic active ingredient in many disinfectants. Felines are particularly susceptible to phenol poisoning. It would be foolish to take a chance with such products. Why does the "safe for pets" labeling appear on the product? I can't tell you.

but don't believe it unless a local veterinarian personally okay's it.

Aspirin also contains a phenol-based derivative and therefore is toxic to cats for the same reason as the disinfectants. (A veterinarian may on occasion prescribe a baby aspirin for specific conditions, but unless it's prescribed don't give your cat aspirin or you may both have headaches.)

DEAR M.C.: Does normally go into labor in the wee, small hours of the morning (and, incidentally, they don't appreciate observers). It's true does don't loiter with littering either. The parturition (labor) process is usually pushed to completion within 30 minutes.

Shabby Yule tree better than none

Right hand makes hero

By Oswald & James Jacoby

"Why didn't you raise my notrump bid?" asked North.

"Why didn't you rebid your notrump?" was South's question in reply to the question.

Three notrump would have been a cinch contract. We feel that South's rebid should have been a notrump raise. His six spades would have been tricks at notrump and he didn't have any singletons in his hand. North also might have rebid notrump instead of going to four spades. North said that it would have been an exercise in futility because South would have gone to four spades anyway.

South gave the hand a really good try. He played dummy's 10 of clubs at trick one. East took his queen and led back the four of diamonds. South won with the king; drew trumps with two leads and led his queen of diamonds.

East took his ace and led a third diamond which South ruffed. South entered dummy with the nine of trumps; ruffed the last diamond and played his last trump while discarding a heart from dummy to come down to a four-card ending.

Then he led a heart to dummy's ace. At this point East had a chance to be a hero or a goat. He turned out to be a hero when he dropped his king of hearts to avoid being caught in an endplay.

Meat for bribery, instead of money

CHICAGO (UPI) — George Bryant, 29, has been indicted on a charge of trying to bribe a policeman with two packages of meat to overlook a parking violation.

An indictment returned Monday by a Cook County grand jury said Bryant allegedly offered the meat to patrolman Donald Nicholas while he was writing a ticket on Bryant's illegally parked car.

Raza group files charge

U.S. to investigate Poly ethnic issue

Two officers of the Office of Civil Rights of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) will investigate early in January several complaints of ethnic discrimination at Cal Poly's Pomona campus.

A class-action complaint by the Raza Urban Coalition, a Mexican-American rights organization, and two individual complaints have been filed with the district office of HEW in San Francisco, according to Robert Holtzapple, an agent of the department's civil rights office.

Holtzapple and another officer with HEW, David Fishman, will be on the Cal Poly campus on Jan. 7 and 8 to investigate the complaints.

If the two investigators find evidence to sustain the complaints, Cal Poly could be asked to change its policies with regard to minority staff and faculty members.

One of the complainants is Miguel Rios, an assistant professor of physics at the state university in Pomona, who maintains that he was unfairly passed over for promotion. More important than any individual case, Rios said Tuesday, is "the effect policies at Cal Poly have on Chicanos as a group."

Rios said that the class-action complaint, to which he is a party, "involves level of hiring, conditions of employment, harassment, and evaluations for tenure."

Rios earned his Ph.D. in physics from the University of Maryland, and in addition to his work at Cal Poly, he is a visiting associate at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

John Francis, associate vice president for administration at Cal Poly and director of the school's affirmative action program, said Tuesday that he had been notified of the investigation by HEW into the complaints but that the investigators had not asked to meet with him.

Francis said that the university is currently organizing an affirmative action program to meet specifications established by Chancellor Glenn Dumke for the state universities and colleges.

Holtzapple said that if the investigation sustains the complaints and the university does not comply with HEW recommendations, federal money to the school could be cut off. The process would take a long time, however, and it is unlikely that action will proceed that far, Holtzapple added.

Antique car that looks like old-time locomotive draws stares from curious

By STAN DARDEN
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — When O. Clyde Davis and his wife go to antique car meets, they travel in a vehicle that looks like the child of a crossmating between a limousine and an old-time steam locomotive.

In a lifetime of collecting antique cars, Davis says he has never acquired anything quite like his 1929 Graham Paige touring car outfitted to look like a locomotive, complete with cowcatcher, steam whistle, clanging bell and siren.

The contraption even belches smoke out of its smokestack. The last cylinder on the car's straight-eight engine is didates of the 1920s. baffled off to spew exhaust through the smokestack.

Davis, who will be 80 years old next April, said the strange-looking car was ordered by Paramount Pictures in the heyday of film promotion to use as a publicity vehicle for premieres.

There were at least four of the big seven-passenger vehicles built for use in various parts of the country to transport stars such as Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks in grand style.

Davis has a book which contains a picture of the late band leader Cab Calloway and his wife, Blanche, riding in one of the locomotive limousines, possibly the one Davis now owns.

"Paramount signed a big contract with Graham Paige to build these cars back in 1929," said Davis. "There must have been quite a lot of money involved because of the work they required. The cars were all fixed up by the Baldwin Locomotive Works to look like a steam engine.

"A lot of stuff on the car is authentic railroad equipment. There must be 500 or 600 pounds of brass on the car."

Davis dresses in a railroad engineer's garb and his wife, Gene, dresses in the style of the 1920s newsboy when they go on the road for antique car meets.

The car has a round metal emblem on the front with the Paramount Pictures logo engraved on it. There is an observation platform built on the back to simulate the platforms that were used by whistle-stopping political can-

Davis said one of the car's previous owners, who used it to promote a now defunct brand of bread, claimed to have driven it at 70 miles per hour.

"I sure wouldn't want to take it that fast," said Davis.

Everywhere the car appears it becomes an instant conversation piece. Children want to ride it and ring the bell while blowing the whistle and sounding the siren.

When he got the car, Davis had to have safety glass installed to replace the now illegal plate glass that was used in the original manufacture. He also had to replace the plush red interior.

Davis declines to say how much he spent for the car which he bought from a 90-year-old Jacksonville dealer. He will say he has between $3,000 and $4,000 invested in it.

"You never can tell," he said. "Somebody might want to buy it someday. "You know, there are still some fools like me left in the world."

Veto power sought over U.S. loans to Russians

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate wants Congress to have the final word on whether low-interest U.S. government loans are used to develop Siberian natural gas fields.

By an 81-9 vote Monday, the Senate demanded congressional veto power over any Export-Import Bank loans for Soviet energy development.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said the bank intended to underwrite two vast exploration and development projects in Siberia. They would be paid off by selling liquified gas to the U.S. at four times the current, regulated price for domestic gas.

"Both projects are planned in such a way that no appreciable risk will be assumed by the multinational oil companies should the deal go awry," he said. "That risk would be assumed by the Export-Import Bank" using funds borrowed from the Treasury.

The Senate sent the bill back to a conference committee with a demand that the new version carry congressional veto authority over the Siberian projects. The House and the administration oppose the restrictions.

New racks are banned

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The City Council Wednesday passed a law banning sidewalk newspaper vending machines, against the advice of the city attorney that the ordinance is probably unconstitutional.

The ordinance was sent to Mayor Tom Bradley, who said he would wait to read it before deciding whether he will sign or veto it.

The ban passed the council on a 9-5 vote, despite a letter from the office of City Attorney Burt Pines saying it was doubtful the law "could withstand constitutional challenge" and "we question the legality of the proposed ordinance."

Proponents said the vending racks had multiplied to nuisance proportions, cluttered up the sidewalks and causing "skinned knees and ankles."

Opponents called it a thinly veiled attempt to halt sales of sex-oriented publications, which depend almost exclusively on sidewalk machine sales.

In Russia

Police after underground church paper

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet secret police searched 10 homes in Moscow and Lithuania in a drive apparently aimed at crushing an underground Roman Catholic journal, according to dissident physicist Andrei D. Sakharov.

Sakharov told Western correspondents that the searches began before dawn Tuesday at five Moscow apartments. In Lithuania, the KGB security police searched homes in the capital of Vilnius and in Klaipeda, the regions main port.

Sakharov said the searches were apparently aimed at finding copies of the Lithuanian Catholic Journal, which has been circulating in typewritten form and accuses authorities of persecuting the church for the last four years.

No buyer for only sculpture by Churchill

LONDON (UPI) — Sir Winston Churchill's only known sculpture failed to find a buyer at a Christie's art auction recently, an auctioneer's spokesman said.

Churchill, a noted amateur painter, executed the bust of sculptor Oscar Nemon in a tables-turning operation in 1952.

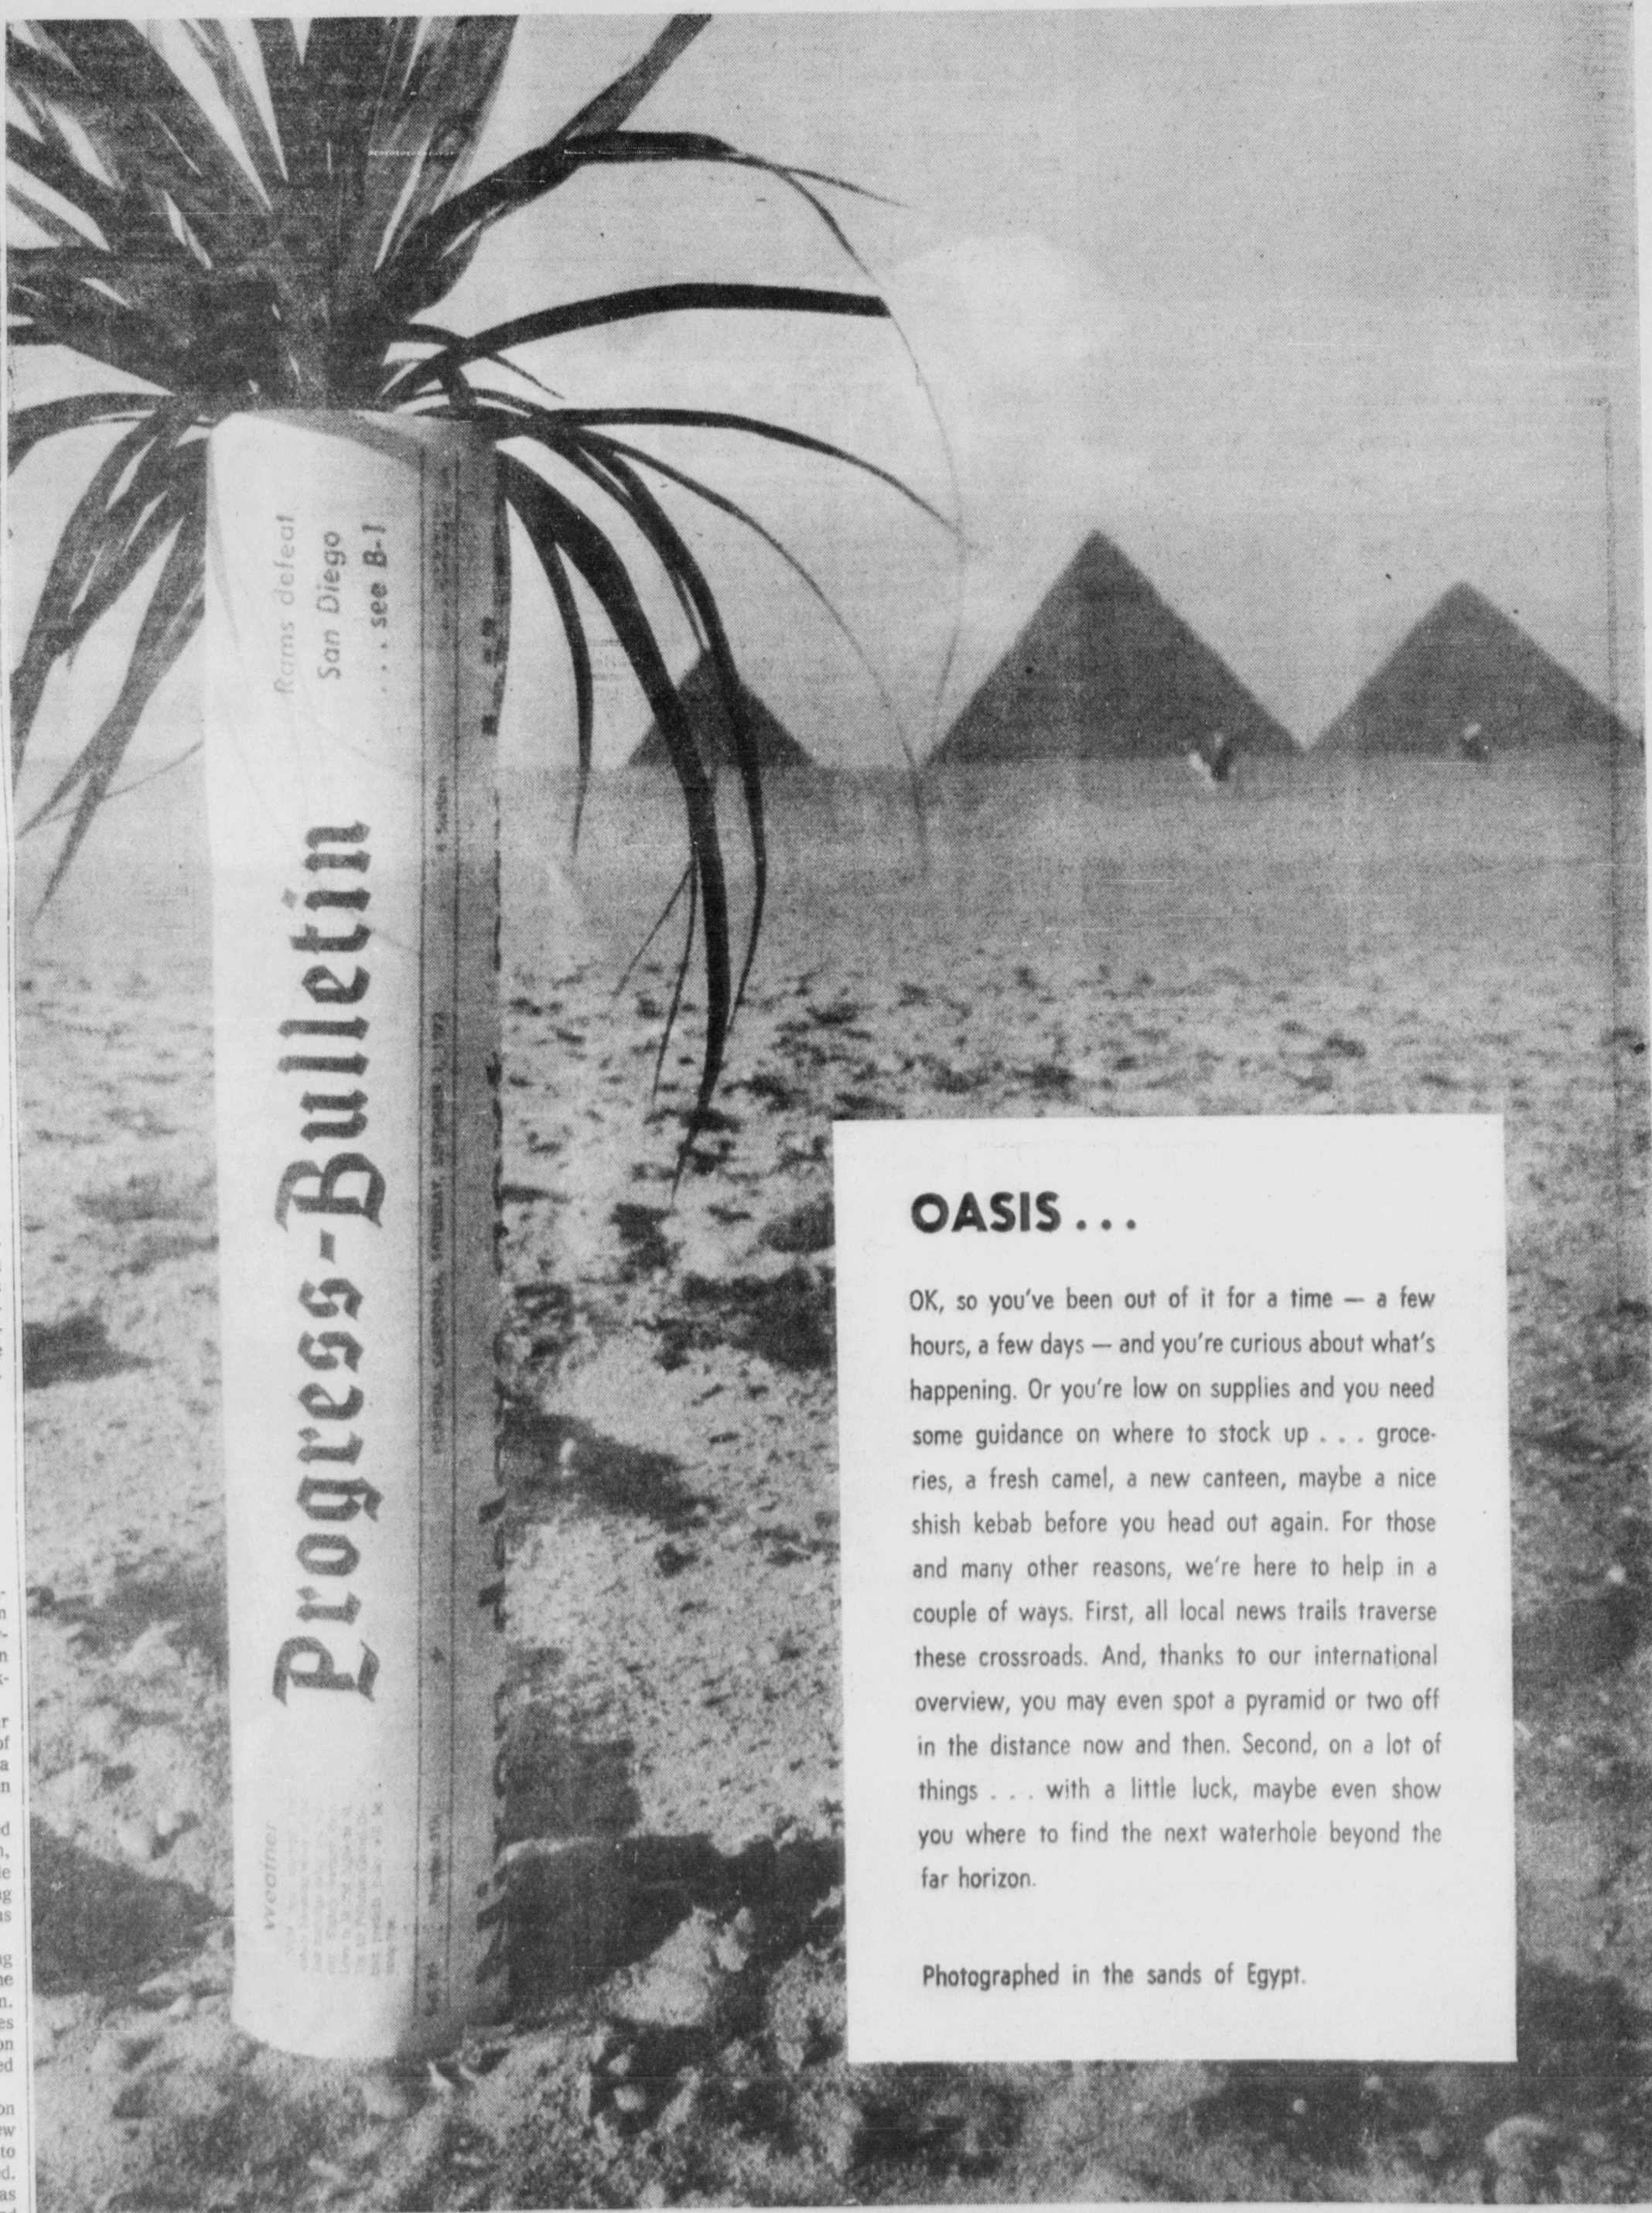

The great man had agreed to sit for a bust by Nemon, which was also in today's sale — a benign bronze, playing down Churchill's famous "bulldog" look.

To while away the posing time, Churchill sketched the artist who was sculpting him. Then he turned the tables completely, and as Nemon moulded his head he sculpted Nemon's.

The artist put both busts on sale today but he withdrew them when bidders failed to bid as high as he had hoped. His bust of Churchill was withdrawn at $4,000 and Churchill's of him, with its preparatory sketch, at $2,650, the spokesman said.

Trucks crush worker

WILMINGTON (UPI) — Emery Sellers Jr., 35, an employe of the Long Beach Sanitation District, was fatally injured Monday when he was crushed between two garbage trucks at a dump.

OASIS . . .

OK, so you've been out of it for a time — a few hours, a few days — and you're curious about what's happening. Or you're low on supplies and you need some guidance on where to stock up . . . groceries, a fresh camel, a new canteen, maybe a nice shish kebab before you head out again. For those and many other reasons, we're here to help in a couple of ways. First, all local news trails traverse these crossroads. And, thanks to our international overview, you may even spot a pyramid or two off in the distance now and then. Second, on a lot of things . . . with a little luck, maybe even show you where to find the next waterhole beyond the far horizon.

Tar pits offer sharp focus on prehistoric life

In 1769 the Spanish explorer Gaspar de Portola, riding through what is now Los Angeles, came upon "springs of pitch," pools and marshes of black, bubbling asphalt.

When scientists began probing Portola's "springs of pitch" more than 100 years later, they were found to be the richest known source of Ice Age fossils in the world. Today this treasure house of paleontology and archeology is Ranch La Brea pits in Hancock Park, designated a registered natural history landmark by the National Park Service, maintained and operated by the county Natural History Museum.

For thousands of years these tar pits were a death trap for wildlife. Saber-toothed cats, mammoths and giant sloths mistook the shiny black pools for water and were caught in the sticky ooze. During extensive exploration between 1906 and 1915, more than 500,000 specimens were recovered, representing at least 200 different kinds of mammals, birds, reptiles, insects and plants. More has been learned about North American Ice Age animals and plants from the tar pits than from any other single source.

America's original 10¢ piece

By WINT BIRD

Two types make up an entire United States dime series. A denomination authorized by the Congressional Act of April 2, 1792, but not coined until 1796. Type I struck in 1797 was designed by Gilbert Stuart and measured thirteen-sixteenths inches. For the first time on this denomination the words "E PLURIBUS UNUM" was used as required by law.

The denomination "10¢" appeared for the first time on this piece designed by John Reich and Robert Scot. Its size was reduced to three-fourths inch in diameter but was replaced with a wreath of cotton, corn, tobacco and wheat.

Charles E. Barber designed the 1897 to 1908 Type VII Dime. The magnificent head of Liberty appears on this quarter dollar and half dollar of the same period.

It retained the 90 per cent in diameter, with composition of 25.4 parts silver to 107.8 parts copper. It weighed 41.6 grains.

The small eagle reverse is surrounded by the issuing authority United States of America but shows no indication of the value.

COINS

Type II has the identical obverse as the Type I. Struck from 1796 to 1807, it was designed by Robert Scot and consisted of the same composition, size and weight as the Type I. It's heraldic eagle reverse is similarly surrounded by the issuing authority, again with no reference to its value.

From 1808 to 1827 the Type III displayed an obverse Liberty wearing the customary Phrygian cap—a symbol of the freed slave—and a reverse eagle with inverted the weight and composition remained constant with previous issues.

Admiral's Seated Liberty design was applied to the Type IV struck in 1837 and 1838. On this issue the denomination "ONE DIME" replaced the eagle in accordance with the Coinage Act of January 18, 1837 that specifically called for the elimination of the eagle on all 10-cent denominations.

The size was further reduced to eleven-sixteenths inch diameter with a composition of 90 per cent silver and 10 per cent copper. The weight was also lowered to 41.25 grains.

Type V struck between 1838 and 1860 was essentially a continuation of the Seated Liberty design with 13 stars added between the design and the rim. In 1838 only the weight was changed again to 38.4 grains.

Coinage of the Type VI Dime from 1860 to 1890 was interrupted in 1873 to have its weight raised from 38.4 grains to 38.56 grains. The 13 stars on the obverse were replaced by the issuing authority United States of America and the reverse laurel wreath silver and 10 per cent copper composition along with the size and weight of its predecessor.

The Barber head series is said to be the turning point in American coinage art. It affected the method of presentation on every denomination issued after 1892.

From 1892 to 1908, A.A. Weinman's Type VIII Liberty (mercury) head dime circulated as one of the most popular coins in the entire dime series. The winged victory cap symbolizes freedom of thought which caused it to resemble the famous head of Mercury. Hence the common reference.

The unusual reverse device is the fasces, a Roman symbol of authority depicting strength in union.

Our present Roosevelt dime design provided two types: IX and X. From 1946 to 1964 the composition was 90 per cent silver and 10 per cent copper. In 1965 the Coinage Act of that year completely eliminated silver as an alloy and substituted instead a solid copper core sandwiched between two layers of a nickel composition: 75 per cent copper and 25 per cent nickel.

ALBUM BEAT

By E. J. Jones

Recent months have seen a lot of composers-turned-singers releasing their own material. Notably among them is Paul Williams. Williams has released four albums to date. The feature material he wrote for release by other singers and popular recording groups plus some new songs never released before.

Paul Williams is the composer of many million-selling hits such as "Rainy Days and Mondays" (recorded by the Carpenters), "Just at Old Fashion Love Song" (made popular by Three Dog Night), and "We've Only Just Begun", a song that started as a theme for a commercial and ended up a Carpenter's million selling single. (Both of these songs by the Carpenters are featured on their album, "The Singles, 1968-73" (A&M SP 3801).

The newest from Paul Williams, "A Little Bit of Love" (A & W Records, SP3856) is both imaginative and different than previous releases, but is still marked by the familiar Williams characteristics.

All the cuts on the album are written by Williams with the exception of "Margarita" a study of interracial romance written by Tom Jans. ("Margarita" is not one of the highlights of the Williams album, Jans does a better job on his recently released album, "Tom Jans", (A&M SP3644).

"Little Bit of Love" starts off with the title song which sets the tone for a listening experience worth waiting for—this is an album you'll play over and over again. Next comes "Sleep Warm"; the above mentioned "Margarita"; "Sunday", a tale about a couple who chose to be close and in love Sunday. "The Family of Man", made popular by Sly and the Family Stones, rounds out side one.

Side two begins with a refrain song called "California Roses", a Williams' rock beat which leads you into "She Sings for Free," "Nice to be Around," "Then I'll be Home," "Loneliness" and "Sad Song," a truly sad song about past romance remembered.

"She Sings for Free" is both interesting and imaginative since it is about the back-up singer on so many of the hits records of today. Lyrics are fanciful and full of fun, but the ring of truth is present.

Not only are the lyrics good but the music is great. A real catchy tune you'll probably hear a lot of in months to come.

"A Little Bit of Love" rates 8 on the Album Beat scale of 10. Williams sums up the music on the album best when he said, "What I've always done is, instead of trying to get soft M.O.R. music players and then trying to get them to build up to something whenever it builds, I get the hard-rock musicians and I pull them back, and it's great because the tensions are there."

Although that statement sounds like a big pat on his own back, this album has all the characteristics Williams is talking about, it has life and energy as only "little" Paul Williams can produce.

Designed by John R. Sin-nock the weight of the second Roosevelt dime was decreased from 38.58 grains to 35 grains.

Demon rum and early pharmacies

It would be thirty or forty years before most drugstores became all things to all people; however, even as long ago as 1890 at least one Pomona druggist was beginning to have some misgivings about certain extra curricular activities over and beyond the call of normal pharmacology which, he claimed, had become common practice in many Pomona pharmacies. In fact, he had become so concerned over what was going on in some of Pomona's drugstores that he decided it was high time to present the problem to the Pomona City Trustees along with the suggestion that they take appropriate action. Consequently, at the April 18, 1890, meeting of Pomona's City

Fathers, as reported in The Pomona Weekly Times:

"A communication was received from J.D.H. Browne, of Brown & Co., asking that druggists be prohibited from selling liquors except for medical purposes."

Druggist Browne's petition further stated that:

"The impression is untrue that drugstores make a great deal of money by selling whisky." And it ended with J.D.H. Browne's personal assurance that the Board of Trustees could count on his earnest cooperation in connection with any action they might take to stop drinking in drugstores.

La Brea pits

Treasure in tar...

Although the Ice Age (Pleistocene) lasted nearly three million years, ending about 10,000 years ago, the tar pits may have existed for only the last 40,000 years. The sticky asphalt pool protected and preserved the fossils of the entrapped animals. They offer a sharp focus on prehistoric life.

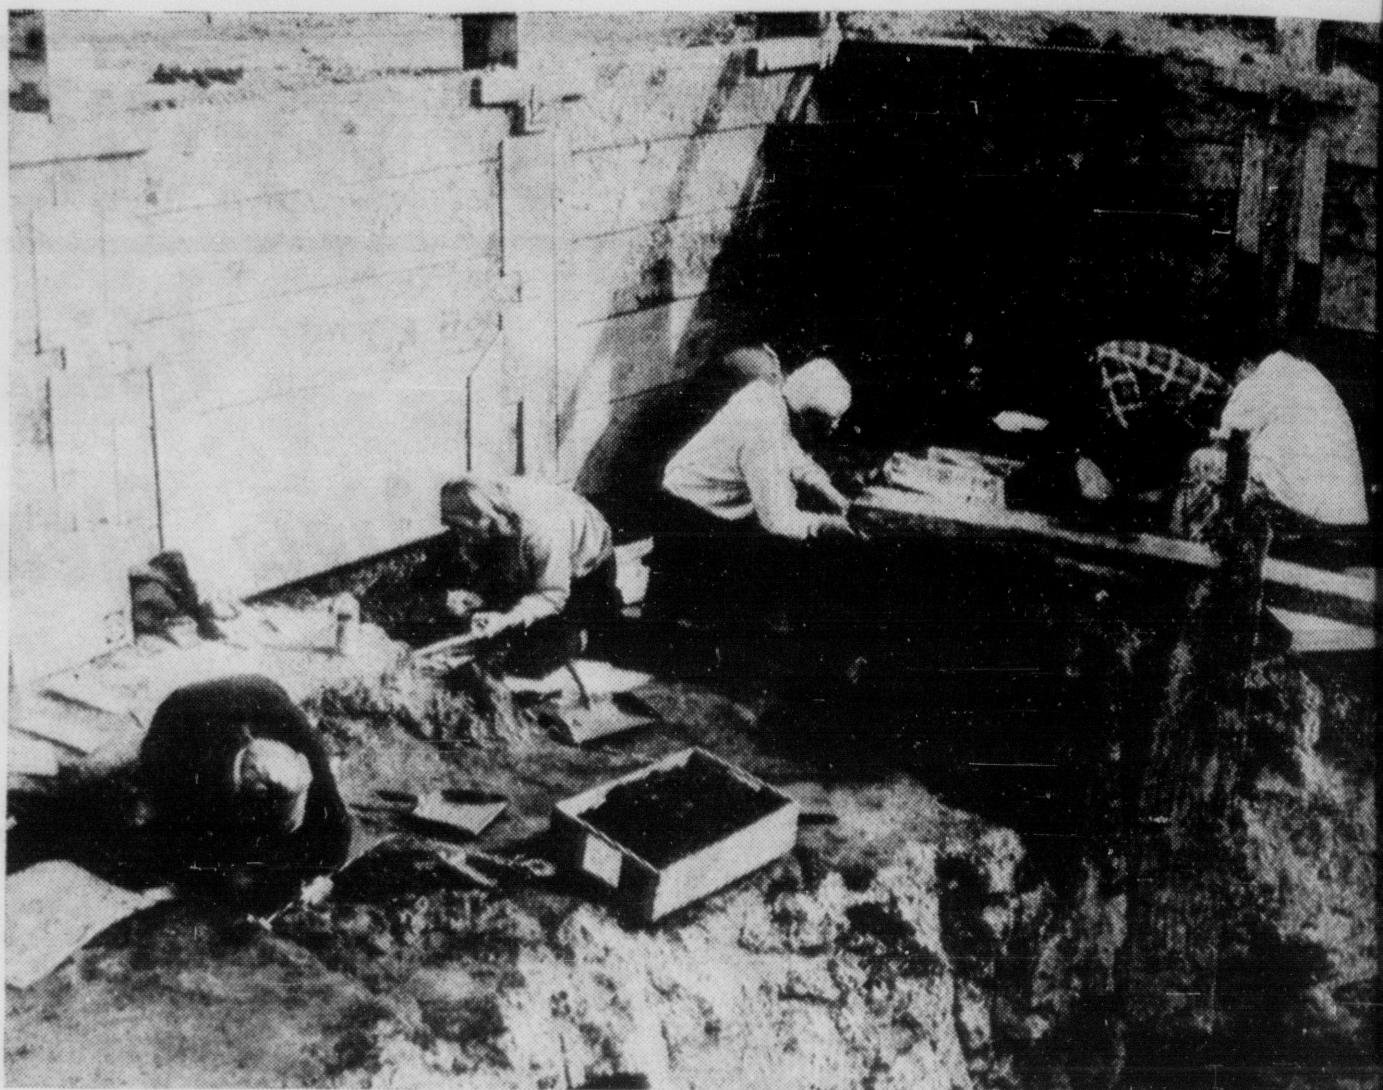

La Brea pits today consist of the broad Pleistocene Meadow; the Observation Pit built around an actual mass of fossil bones just as they were discovered; an active dig where volunteer excavators can be seen at work; and a two-story A-frame building housing laboratories for entomology, mineralogy, ultrasonic cleaning, microfossil sorting and a reference collection.

Here volunteer workers are trained by scientists to clean, sort and classify specimens before they are shipped to the museum.

All about the park are concrete statues modeled on the actual fossils found in the pits—giant sloths, mammoths, the great short-faced bear, and the saber-toothed cat (Smilodon Californicus, the official state fossil). The cat, as large as an African lion, mysteriously disappeared from California 8,000 years ago. The pits have yielded 25,000 fossils of parts of the cats.

The most dramatic statues are the Pleistocene Lake Group, depicting a female Imperial mammoth trapped in the ooze, bellowing to her mate on the shore. The grim tableau is the most popular attraction for tourists and the thousands of school children who visit the tar pits every year.

The current dig, sponsored by the Foundation of the Natural History Museum, started in 1969 and has reached a depth of more than 10 feet. It has yielded more than one million specimens, mostly small plants, insects, snails and bones. All fossils are being collected, but the emphasis is on small ones, the geology and the positions of the fossils, things which were not considered to be important in earlier excavations.

The dig is carried out by volunteer workers, carefully probing with hand trowels and dental picks. More than 2,500 housewives, businessmen, high school and college students and retired people have taken part. Everyone is welcome to join in the dig for a day, a week a month or longer.

Prehistoric species recovered from the pits over the year, in addition to those already mentioned, are camel, bison, horse, antelope, lizards, rodents and birds. The only human relic is the skull of an Indian woman discovered in 1914 and recently determined to be 9,000 years old. Museum scientists say this makes "the La Brea Woman" among the oldest human remains ever found in the Western Hemisphere.

Dr. Theodore Downs, chief of earth sciences at the Natural History Museum, is responsible for the dig, and Dr. David Whistler, senior curator of vertebrate paleontology, is directing. Dr. William Akersten is project scientist at the site.

After visiting the tar pits, interested persons are urged to go to the county Museum of Natural History in Exposition Park, where the skeletons of many of the larger animals found in the tar pits are assembled. Admission to the museum and the tar pits is free. Guided tours of the pits also are offered.

ON THE COVER

The La Brea pits in Hancock Park, Los Angeles, are the richest known source of fossils of the Ice Age. The pits have yielded more than 1½ million fossils, ranging from huge mammoths to insects. Concrete statues of some of the more dramatic fossils stand throughout the park. At top, two giant ground sloths tower over George Brooke, Claremont Graduate School student from England. Below is the Pleistocene Lake Group, depicting a female Imperial mammoth trapped in the pits, left, calling to her mate and calf on the shore.

"The La Brea Woman," 9,000-year-old skull of an Indian woman found in the tar pits, is one of the oldest specimens of human remains in the Western Hemisphere.

Armour spoofs education

By NICHOLAS POLOS
THE ACADEMIC BESTIARY by Richard Armour, William Morrow, $4.95.

Paperchase: "bestiary: a collection of moralized fables about natural history objects, mostly animals, attributed to an Alexandrian Greek of the 4th century after Christ. It was universally known in the Middle Ages."

Nicholas Polos is associate professor of history at La Verne College.

This little academic gold mine of good humor is the last in a satirical trilogy on education—the others being "Going Around in Academic Circles" and "A Diabolical Dictionary of Education." Armour's Armory is a highly incendiary collection of powerful humorous weapons. When supported by the sharp, incisive and highly graphical talents of Paul Darrow the result is a Voltaire-like voltage of learned lightning strokes.

In a moment of frustrated self-mockery Ogden Nash once wrote: "...if you are the mother of a poet, don't gamble on the chance that future generations will crown him. Follow your original impulse and drown him."

Fortunately for our generation and future generations, Armour's mother ignored this advice. This is the best book of Armour's 31, not only because it contains in a humorous way "the sting of truth," but because Armour writes with authority about an animal farm which he knows very well.

The basic theme of this book is "a natural history of the strange species of Academe—The Full Professor, the Dissertation, The Tenure, the Activist, and many others."

Armour is more than a poet or a satirist, and one should not be deceived by his light and frothy touch on subjects of great magnitude.

William Hazlitt, in his early "Lectures on the English Comic Writers," wrote: "Man is the only animal that laughs and weeps at the same time; for he is the only animal that is struck with the difference between what things are and what they ought to be."

Following in this tradition, Armour reveals that he is, indeed, a modern philosopher who is concerned mainly about the "oughtness of the human condition," and the fact that he can laugh through the tears reveals a rare courage.

When one looks through the glass brightly today he soon realizes that the only way for humanity to be saved is to remain civilized. "The Academic Bestiary" is a civilized book written in the best tradition of western civilization by a scholar who deserves more than a garland of ibids.

Buy this book; it will make you the hit of the cocktail party. It is a better almanac than Machiavelli's "The Prince" because it is filled with princely characters. This is a paltry price for such a princely work.

Each of these vignettes of the fantastic-land of learning could be framed for your study wall thus making a gallery of "least wanted people."

Even Armour's own conclusion seems to confirm the suspicion that this is a never-never land when he writes: "What makes the Land of Academe so remarkable is that it is the best of all "impossible worlds."

Now 2 Tapes Ltds. serve stereophiles

In any business it is the customer who counts, but nowhere is that more true at Tapes Ltd. in Pomona and Upland, say the stores' officials.

"We try to give the customer the best possible service," explained Mathew Jakubiac, store manager of Tapes Ltd. at 961 E. Holt Ave., Pomona.

The firm specializes in the sale of car stereos and radios but Jakubiac said there's a broader aim.

"We're not in the business of just selling car stereos. What we are selling is a piece of high-quality sound equipment that will be enjoyed for many years."

Ron Hart, service manager at the Pomona store, further emphasizes that philosophy.

"Our goal is to help the customer maintain his tape player, whether he bought it from us or not. We show the customer how to clean equipment and maintain it," said Hart.

When repairs are needed, he continued, service department personnel explain to the customer what is wrong and what repairs must be made.

"We don't try to push the customer into buying something he doesn't want. We want to sell him what he wants," Hart said.

Due to the success of the Pomona store over the last dozen years, Tapes Ltd. expanded in November with the opening of a new store at 959 W. Foothill Blvd., Upland.

"Just like the Pomona store, our policy here is to offer friendly service," said Amy Crow, one of three sisters who staff the sales department at the new store.

The Upland store will soon offer an expanded line of sound equipment, explained Manager Ken Radaich, with the addition of home stereo units and television sets.

The reaction to the new store has been a good, said Radaich, with many customers of the Pomona store finding the new location more to their convenience.

"We saw a real need for a location in this area," said Tony Jakubiac, owner of Tapes Ltd.

Both stores offer full lines of tape and cassette sound systems, plus combination tape players and radios.

"The equipment we carry is the best," said Jakubiac.

The top brand names are Clarion and Audiovox. Sansui and Sony equipment will be offered in the near future.

Both stores also carry a variety of speakers and accessory equipment.

The Pomona store carries an enormous selection of tapes, including rock, country, classical and easy listening music, and a large selection of cassette recordings.

In addition, the Upland store has added records to the Tapes Ltd. list of service and products.

Both stores are open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

'It was fun but now it's gone'

Artist embalms rockers

By STEPHEN FORD

NEW YORK (NEA) — The evolution of rock music has spawned a variety of seemingly unrelated enterprises — among them questionable cartoons, awful musicals, tacky movies and some worthwhile technological breakthroughs in sophisticated amplifying equipment.

Add to that list art.

Guy Peellaert, tall, nearly gaunt native of Brussels now living in Paris, is an artist who specializes on rock music.

The 40-year-old bachelor, clad for an interview in a tight-fitting French undershirt and casual trousers, speaks carefully, halting English as he smokes his thick Gitane cigarettes. He smiles a lot. He has a lot to smile about these days since his first work in this country was just released, "Rock Dreams" (Popular Library, $7.95).

"Rock Dreams" is an existential smorgasbord of pop sociology and flashy, surrealist paintings that capture the multi-dimensional depravity of rock stars with too much money to spend and nothing to spend it on.

Five years ago, Peellaert was known only to European underground "comix" fans as a contributing artist until he drew a cartoon strip for the French satirical magazine "Harcari."

The cartoon depicted a soccer team huddled in their dugout planning game strategy, then fighting on the field for the ball and through a series of panels, eventually metamorphosing into a patrol of armed soldiers under fire in a trench and on the battlefield. It not only opened the minds of many continental antimilitarists but opened the door of opportunity for Peellaert as well.

It was right after publication of that issue that Peellaert's future exploded. He received offers to illustrate for several leading European magazines and opportunities to animate movies. Playwright Peter Zedeck also asked Peellaert to design the stage set for a Sean O'Casey play Zedeck was planning to produce.

It was May, 1970, when Peellaert, researching a movie he hoped to produce, launched the idea for "Rock Dreams."

A devoted student of American film and music fan magazines for more than 20 years, Peellaert realized the effect of rock music and its magnitude. Shortly thereafter, "Rock Dreams" was realized.

Two years and seven months later, Peellaert unveiled 116 paintings incorporating photomontage, air brush and a sardonic artist's touch.

"Each painting took approximately two weeks to complete," he said. "One week was spent shooting backgrounds with a Polaroid camera and the next was spent adding the other elements — some paint to the background or a photo of some musician's face. Then, the whole thing was photographed again to give it a flat, two-dimensional effect."

Peellaert said it was the first time he had ever used the technique of photograph and paint, "and probably the last. It was an interesting idea but I don't expect to repeat it for anything else I do."

Rock appears such a distinctly American vice that it ought to be difficult for a European to perceive it in all its New World wickedness but Peellaert's perspective is hardly suffering from naivete or culture shock.

"Rock is music and as such, is universal," he said, "but the door is closing. It has become a fashionable cliché. 'Rock Dreams' was my way of saying 'It was fun while it was here but now it's gone, the final chapter is folding. Let us record it and then move on.'"

Helping Peellaert graphically record the 20th century's new gladiators is British pop writer Nik Cohn. His terse, sensitive commentary accompanying each painting is always polite and never interferes with the lurid thrill show splashed before the viewer.

Peellaert's impressions of the pied pipers who led a generation astray are rarely literal. Instead, he paints a moral feast serving up all aspects of the $3 billion recording industry — many not very appetizing.

Peellaert's own favorites among the warped panoply of "Rock Dreams" are his rendering of a drunken Jerry Lee Lewis (the hillbilly Mick Jagger of the '50s) and his pathetic portrait of the lifeless Janis Joplin sprawled across a bed in an otherwise empty room. "They need no explanations," Peellaert states simply in explaining why he prefers those two over the rest.

Peellaert said that nearly a third of the original paintings appearing in "Rock Dreams" have been sold, many to the notables immortalized in its pages. Among the buyers are

Two events at UCLA to honor composer

To honor the memory of composer Harry Partch, UCLA will present two events on the afternoon of Jan. 5 in conjunction with the presentation of his opera, "The Bewitched," later that evening.

A program featuring the film "Music Studio," along with a taped lecture of Partch explaining his approach to tuning, will be presented at 1 p.m. in Schoenberg Hall. The film was shot in 1958 in Partch's studio in Chicago.

Following the lecture, at approximately 2:30 p.m., the public will be invited to inspect the instruments created by Partch.

The film showing and the instrument exhibitions are free.

Focal point of the tribute to Partch is his music-drama, "The Bewitched," to be presented fully-staged next Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and Jan. 5 at 8 p.m. in Royce Hall.

Junior achievers learn system

How do you convince today's youth that it takes more than mere "book knowledge" to run a successful business in our free-enterprise system?

One sure bet is to make them part of the competitive system just as Southern California Junior Achievement and General Telephone are doing with local high school students.

Financial woes, production schedules, labor shortages, due dates, price cutting, inflationary costs and competition are just a few of the roadblocks Junior Achievers must learn to overcome in running their own miniature companies at the J.A. centers in Covina and Montclair.

Success

Chances, too, are that local Achievers will know the feeling of success next spring if everything goes as planned. But, as in the real business world, there's always the unexpected.

However, San Dimas-La Verne area students participating at the Covina J.A. center can rely on the past business experiences of General Telephone advisers, many from Pomona, in managing their "General Achievement Company."

Curt Hilliard of San Dimas and John Luna of Pomona are volunteering one night a week through next summer to serve as executive advisers of the "General Achievement Company" at the Covina center. The J.A. company is typical of the many General Telephone sponsors each year throughout the southland.

Advisers

Both Hilliard and Luna are employees of the phone company, as are J.A. advisers Carl Peccalaio, Glen Baker, Bob Boggan and Dan Valiant.

None receives financial compensation from the utility for the time they put in with the "learn about business" program.

The Achievers must rely on their staff of officers to make all the decisions for their company, falling back on their advisers only when major issues need to be decided. They buy their own raw materials, organize their own production set-up, keep their own books, determine their own wages, and sell their own product, which this year is a desk set featuring a glass telephone insulator. The latter is considered a collector's item by many antique dealers.

"Junior Achievement, if anything, teaches our youths that there's a lot of hard work behind every dollar earned in our free-enterprise system," Hilliard said.

NYC aides assist in water district

If Walnut Valley Water District's office seems a little less hectic and its field cars and trucks look sharper and cleaner, give the credit to a newly found work resource.

Extra hands were provided to the district by the Rowland Unified School District through the Neighborhood Youth Core Program.

Walnut Valley Water District, participating in the fall work period with NYC, used one student as an office aide and one student as an auto mechanic aide. These NYC workers were with Walnut Valley Water for 120 work hours.

The Neighborhood Youth Core Program is under the guise of the Manpower Division of the U.S. Department of Labor. Rowland Unified School District has sponsored NYC related programs for the last seven years.

Student qualification for NYC funds depends largely upon his/her family needs, taking into consideration family size and total family income. Under NYC students work a maximum of 10 hours per week. Their wage is paid by NYC funds. Rowland Unified has 25 students funded by NYC. In summer months that number will increase to 130.

Rowland unified NYC coordinator Barbara Billdeaux is headquartered at Nogales High School. Her job is to recruit qualified students from area high schools and refer them to open positions offered, preferably outside the school environment.

The two students who worked at Walnut Valley Water are Gloria Segovia and Art Duarte. Office aide Gloria Segovia is a junior at Nogales High School. Gloria is preparing herself for a career as an executive bilingual secretary. This is her first NYC job. At Walnut Valley Water's District office, Gloria did filing, light typing and helped keep customer accounts in order. Her efforts helped to alleviate the ever growing accounts and clerical workload at Walnut Valley Water.

Auto mechanic aide, Art Duarte came to Walnut Valley Water District from Nogales High School also. A senior at Nogales, Art has designed his high school courses around becoming an auto mechanic.

At the district, Art was charged with preventive maintenance of district vehicles. His duties ranged from washing and waxing cars and trucks to checking and maintaining lubricant levels in engines and transmissions. These are vital aspects of vehicle maintenance. In a fleet operation a low oil level can sometimes be overlooked and later prove costly. Art's keeping tabs on these things was important to the district's field operations.

Both Gloria and Art have reported that they received good experience at Walnut Valley Water District.

CHS Zonta hosts children's party

Members of the girl's Zonta Club at Claremont High School sold candy suckers as a service project.

Proceeds were used for a Christmas party for children from low-income families.

Known as the Z Club, this organization is open to all girls at Claremont High who are interested in school and community service. Catherine Serpa is president.

The first week of school after the holidays Claremont

High students will vote for their "Favorite Red Hot Teachers." This event is sponsored by the combined track teams.

Teachers may be nominated by anyone paying the 25 cent fee. There is no limit on the number of nominations which may be made.

Voting will take place Jan. 6-9.

The winning teachers will make up and lead a cheer at the school rally on Jan. 10.

Valley home sought for Latin students

Host families are needed for a number of Latin America high school students who will arrive in Southern California in January.

These young people are between the ages of 15 and 19 and are from Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Ecuador, Panama, Uruguay and Venezuela.

They are part of the worldwide program known as the International Cultural Exchange, sponsored by the Bureau of Educational Affairs of the U.S. State Department.

They will be placed in homes where they will have the opportunity to attend high school, attain greater proficiency in English and acquire a better understanding of our country and customs.

Size, wealth or age of host family members are not the most important ingredients. Rita D. Hammer, west coast coordinator, said exchange students have been placed with families with small children, no children and even one-parent.

Those interested in serving as hosts may telephone or write Frank Meza, 335 Atwood Drive, Corona 91720, (714) 735-5638.

Capes, big tops stay

The chemises and smock dresses, big tops and cape coats worn now are just a forerunner of things to come for the young.

Fashion says the fuller silhouette will become even more important. Regardless of the style, the one thing they all will have in common is the lack of a waistline.

A big top over matching straight-leg pants makes a girl look taller; a big-sleeve blouse in pastel print is a peasantry look big top.

As for a cape, rain-chasing is its natural ability. A cape-coat sewn up in beige waterproof poplin can boast a name French designer but its pattern and fabric are toally American.

Happiness concerns seniors

Today's high school seniors care more about personal happiness than a solution to world problems.

They look forward to achievement instead of activism, and success instead of sacrifice, according to a special report on "The Senior Mood" in the January Seventeen. Authors Charles and Bonnie Remsberg, who reached their conclusions from interviews at Cleveland Heights High School (which has a racially, religiously and ethnically mixed student body and is considered typical of close-in suburban schools across the country) reveal that students are chiefly concerned about getting into college and preparing for lifetime careers in "straight" jobs. The desire to participate in movements seems dead.

Students now display a cynicism toward social and governmental institutions, and a feeling of helplessness about their ability to influence forces that shape their lives.
